Dewey May Order Probe Of All New York Courts

Governor Favors Charter Change to Revise System

Albany, Dec. 24 (AP) — Gov. Dewey, spurred by revelations of court corruption in New York city, says he is considering a sweeping investigation of all courts in the state.

Dewey also called yesterday for revision of the state constitution to take selection of State Supreme Court justices out of party politics.

The governor spoke to newsmen after he had conferred for two hours with representatives of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

He said he had been "impressed" by arguments of the four-member delegation, which he said had "urged in the strongest terms an investigation of our judicial system."

He said the bar association had proposed an investigation of the manner of selecting judges, the organization of the courts and the "use of money to get judicial appointments and evidence of court corruption."

Whole State Involved

The bar association request covered courts in the First Judicial District (Manhattan and the Bronx). However, Dewey said that any probe would "have to look at the whole state and cover all the courts."

He said he would consult with judges of the Courts of Appeals and other leading lawyers before making a decision.

The governor urged adoption in modified form of the "Missouri plan" for selection of judges.

"Anything would be an improvement over the present system," Dewey declared. He noted he had called for some version of the Missouri plan "at least four times previously."

It would establish a permanent five-member State Judicial Commission to select three candidates for any Supreme Court vacancy.

The governor then would appoint one of the three, who would serve until the November election in the year following his appointment.

Until Voters Approve

At that time, the justice's name would appear alone on the ballot. If approved by the electorate, he would serve during good behavior until he became 70. If he were rejected, the whole process would be repeated until an appointee won the nod of voters.

The Judicial Commission would be composed of two lawyers appointed by the Court of Appeals, the presiding justice in the judicial district involved, and two laymen appointed by the governor from "differing political parties."

If the 1953 Legislature should approve such a constitutional amendment, it would have to be

Denials Are Made Over Testimony

One of 30 Accused Says Budenz 'Professional Liar' and Statements Declared False

Pauling Is Heated

Former Atom Scientist Denies Being Member of Red Party

Washington, Dec. 24 (AP)—Vehement denials have come from several persons among the 30 scholars and officials of leading educational foundations named by Louis Budenz yesterday as members of the Communist party.

Budenz is the former managing editor of the Daily Worker, Communist paper published in New York city, who publicly renounced Communism in 1945 and is now on the staff of Fordham University.

"A professional liar," he was called by one of the men he accused. "Absolutely and unqualifiedly false," another said of his testimony, given before a House committee which is trying to determine whether the funds of tax-free foundations are being used for subversive activities.

Budenz has appeared numerous times before Congressional committees and, he said, has recounted to the FBI at great length what he knows of Communist party activities.

Cites 30 Persons

In his appearance yesterday, he ticked off 30 persons—some of them well-known—as being Communist party members before he quit in 1945. A list of names was read to him by Harold M. Keele, committee counsel. Budenz said he knew them to have been Communists from personal experience and from his access to party documents.

Many of them had been described as Communists before, and some had denied it. But committee officials said Budenz for the first time described as a Red, Thomas I. Emerson, now a professor at the Yale law school.

In New Haven, Emerson said Budenz was "dreaming up things" and he declared: "I have never been a member of the (Communist) party and could not possibly have been listed as a member on their records."

Officials of the House group said Emerson received a grant this year from the Guggenheim foundation.

Pauling Gets Hot

The most heated denial of Budenz's new testimony came from Dr. Linus Pauling, a former atomic scientist who is now a professor and chairman of the division of chemistry and chemical engineering at California Institute of Technology.

Of Budenz's testimony that he had been a Communist party member "under discipline," Pauling said at Pasadena:

"This statement is a lie. I have never been a member of the Com-

Attorney General Orders FBI To Investigate Waterfront, Says Evidence Is Sufficient

No Identification Is Made of Any Laws Violated by Groups Involved

Can Seek Bills

State Commission Can Request Legislation on Conditions

Washington, Dec. 24 (AP)—The FBI has been ordered by Atty. Gen. McGranery to move into the investigation of the New York waterfront, pictured in sworn testimony before a state crime commission as the focus of gangster terrorism.

Witnesses before the New York state commission, at sensational hearings now in recess, have described the waterfornt as the locale of widespread bribery, extortion, shakedowns and strong arm tactics.

McGranery announced late yesterday that he was directing the FBI to undertake a federal investigation imediately.

"The Department of Justice," he said, "which has been watching the New York waterfront situation for months, now has sufficient evidence of federal law violations to warrant a full-scale investigation."

McGranery did not go into details in his statement, and Justice Department officials declined to elaborate on his reference to evidence of federal law violations, or to identify statutes under which federal action might be taken.

Declines Comment

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declined comment, but in New York the chief investigator for the state crime commission, Joseph Kaitz, said the group would offer to the FBI "any and all assistance and information."

Dewey's long-time close associate, Herbert Brownell, is slated to replace McGranery as attorney general when the Eisenhower administration takes over Jan. 20.

Dewey, who instigated the state crime commission, has called the situation it spotlighted on the waterfront "a stench in the nostrils of the community." The commission has no power to punish wrongdoers, but it can seek remedial legislation in Albany.

Its aim in the waterfront probe has been to seek background on dock rackets which are bleeding an estimated 350 million dollars annually from New York's seven billion dollar a year shipping industry.

Has Heard Testimony

The commission has heard sworn testimony that the AFL International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) is infested with mobsters practicing graft and terrorism, and that shipping and stevedoring firms tolerate gangsters in the ILA because they keep the dock workers in line.

It has also heard testimony linking dock gangsters with political figures.

Mayors John V. Kenny of Jersey City and Fred M. De Sapio of Hoboken were accused of associations with dock racketeers—a charge both denied. And former Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York city was described as having kept some waterfront scandals under cover while he was district attorney.

O'Dwyer has said in effect that he did all he could while he was district attorney to prevent crime on the waterfront.

Lane Favors Probe

U. S. Attorney Myles J. Lane said in New York he favors the FBI probe ordered by McGranery, his superior.

"I agree with the attorney general and approve his action 100 per cent," Lane said. "There is a plenitude of evidence of illegal acts on the waterfront to warrant investigation and indictments."

Lane commented that a special rackets grand jury has been at work in New York for the past 10 months and has named four waterfront figures in indictments. He said he anticipates more within the next two weeks.

Rains Cause Trouble

Athens, Greece, Dec. 24 (AP)—Rains now in their fourth day caused extensive damage and crippled communication facilities throughout Greece. Seventeen houses collapsed at Kiato in the northern Peloponnesus.

Allied Artillery Crushes First Wave — Sky Fights Reported

Seoul, Dec. 24 (AP) — Chinese Communists struck through bitter day-before-Christmas cold today in a fierce attempt to puncture the allied line at T-Bone Hill in western Korea. Allied artillery almost completely destroyed the first wave of Reds, the U. S. 8th Army reported, and UN soldiers turned back the others in hand-to-hand fighting.

High over North Korea, allied Sabre jets roared into battle with an estimated 60 Russian-made MIG jets. The U. S. 5th Air Force called it "a clawing free-for-all." In dogfights all over the North Korean skies, Sabre pilots probably destroyed two MIGs and damaged nine, the air force said.

Trenches Are Attacked

The Eighth Army said a Chinese battalion of about 750 men attacked allied trenches and bunkers on frozen T-Bone Hill, west of Chorwon. The battalion was supported by about 2,600 rounds of artillery — an intense barrage for a small area.

Red troops reached outposts of the hill between 2 a. m. and 3 a. m., but allied soldiers, braced by reinforcements and a thunderous artillery barrage of their own, held fast and never were in danger of being overrun, an Eighth Army staff officer said.

The Reds gave up about 4 a. m.

Rail Line Cut

Allied fighter-bombers, workhorses of the Fifth Air Force, cut a rail line south of Pyongyang in 25 places today and marine Panther jets hit ammunition caves and a command post near Yonan on the western front. B-26 bombers destroyed 75 Red supply trucks during the night.

Twenty-two B-29 Superforts last night dropped high explosives on four Red supply centers in the Wonsan area of the east coast. Three other B-29s bombed Communist frontline positions.

Today's flareup in ground and air action came on the eve of the 31st month of the war and while Christian soldiers of the United Nations prepared for Christmas celebrations all across the frosty peninsula. However, the attack on T-Bone was the only action bigger than the usual patrols and probes. It was the first battalion-sized attack by the Reds in two weeks.

Will Be Assistant to Benson in Farm Slot in 1953

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower today chose True D. Morse of St. Louis, Mo.—a Republican who was a Democrat until about 20 years ago—for the job of undersecretary of agriculture in the new administration.

Morse, 56-year-old board chairman of a farm management service and editor of a farm publication, will serve as top aide to Ezra Taft Benson of Salt Lake City, Utah, secretary of agriculture-designate.

The nomination of Morse and others Eisenhower has named to key posts will go to the Senate for confirmation after the general takes office Jan. 20.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Benson recommended Morse — who was born on a Missouri farm—for the job as undersecretary. It pays $17,500 a year.

Morse will succeed Clarence J. McCormick, who holds the post in the Truman administration.

In reply to a reporter's question, Hagerty said Morse was a Democrat—that he was listed as one in Who's Who in America.

Says It's Oversight

In St. Louis, however, Morse said he has been voting Republican on the national ticket for some 20 years. He said it was an oversight that he had failed to change the listing in Who's Who.

Hagerty described him as an Eisenhower supporter during the campaign.

Morse is a member of the Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church. He is president of his church in St. Louis and has a long record of church work there. He also is a trustee of the non-denominational Bible College of Columbia, Mo., which operates in cooperation with the University of Missouri.

He has one son, an army second lieutenant stationed at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas.

Gets Ready for Christmas

Eisenhower's selection of Morse came as the general made ready to spend Christmas in New York with his family, including three grandchildren, and in the wake of a conference on government reorganization and other matters with former President Hoover.

Like many another grandfather, Eisenhower will help trim a Christmas tree tonight. It is being put up for the children of the President-elect's son John, an army major who is in Korea.

The children—Dwight David, 4, Barbara Anne, 3, and Susan, 11 months—arrived with their mother yesterday at the general's Columbia University home on Morningside Heights. They reside in Highland Falls, near West Point.

Churches of World Open Doors to Welcome All for Nativity Ceremonies

(By The Associated Press)

Christians turned from the cares and sorrows of a troubled, strife-wracked world today to begin the happy yet solemn ceremonies commemorating the birth of Him who preached the gifts of peace and love to all mankind.

As the last minute rush for presents and festive goodies died away, millions of faithful lifted their hearts in Christmas eve prayers of thanks and hope, and their voices in carols of joy.

Churches throughout Christendom threw open their doors to welcome all to traditional Christmas Eve ceremonies. In Bethlehem of Judea, a special Catholic midnight Mass beginning in the Chapel of St. Catherine will end in the Grotto of the Nativity, on the spot designated by His followers as the birthplace of Christ nearly 2,000 years ago.

At the same time a Protestant service will be held on nearby terraced slopes that mark the traditional spot where angels announced the birth of Christ to shepherds watching their flocks by night.

Many Pilgrims Arrive

Hundreds of pilgrims have arrived in the Holy Land to worship at the shrines connected with the birth of Christ. As in past Christmas times, the heavy border guards between Jordan and Israel—still technically at war—will step aside to permit passage to the holy places.

Pope Pius XII, in his 14th annual Christmas broadcast, again pleaded for peace and for help to the world's "poor and oppressed." He attacked communism for a condemnation of the Christian faith, a condemnation he said had

299 on Liberte Denied Leave on Immigration Law

Ordered to Stay Aboard for Refusing Proper Information on Red Ties

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Immigration authorities denied shore leave today to 299 of the French Liner Liberte's crew of 974 in the first application of the McCarran-Walter Act, which is aimed at keeping subversives from landing.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, district director of the U. S. Immigration Naturalization Service, made the announcement as the huge passenger ship docked at Pier 88 in the North river.

He said 27 of the 299 had been denied shore leave only tentatively because their seamen's papers were not in order.

Of the rest, all but two were ordered to stay aboard ship for refusing to answer questions put to them under the law.

Of the remaining two, one admitted past Communist membership and one had a criminal record.

Protests Made

Officials of France and some other nations have protested the crew restrictions imposed by the new law, which went into effect last midnight.

The Liberte was the first liner to reach port since then.

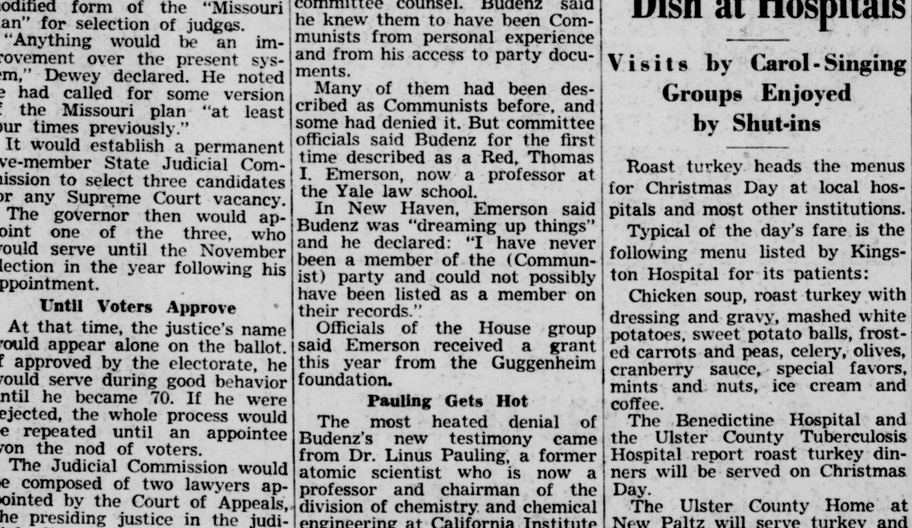

Crew members were inspected on the high seas in relation to the new law by Immigration Officer Leonard J. Martin, of East Orange, N. J., who left New York on the Liberte on Dec. 9.

Shaughnessy said Martin worked 14 eight-hour days to determine whether any crew member came within the 31 basic causes for exclusion set forth in the law.

Shaughnessy said that in 270 cases aboard the Liberte the crew-

Captured After Tavern Bombing

An off-duty patrolman, John H. Hurston (left), holds a gun on Mark Sutter, 19, believed to be a soldier in civilian clothes, as Sutter's dying companion, James Eugene McDermot, 19-year-old Marine, lies in a New York gutter Dec. 23. They were arrested after police said they tossed a phosphorous bomb into a tavern on Manhattan's upper West side. McDermott, shot in the head during the chase died later in New York's Knickerbocker Hospital.

Two, Involved in Bomb Incident, Held in Bail

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Two of three young servicemen involved in the bombing of a New York tavern faced the prospect today, at a judge's suggestion, of spending their Christmas leaves in jail.

Their companion was dead as a result of an encounter with policemen after the bombing, which caused injuries to 14 persons.

Magistrate Jack L. Nicoll yesterday held Mark Sutter and Patrick Shanahan, both 19, in $10,000 bail each—twice the amount asked by Assistant District Attorney Palmer Kennedy.

Nicoll, in the youth section of felony court, adjourned the case until Dec. 29 and advised the pair's parents to leave them in jail meanwhile so they could think about what they had done.

Sutter, an airman, and Shanahan, a sailor, were arrested yesterday after Marine Sgt. James Eugene Mc Dermott, also 19, set off a phosphorus grenade in an upper west side Manhattan tavern filled with Puerto Ricans. The three youths, who all lived on Amsterdam avenue in New York, were celebrating holiday leaves together.

A patrolman who chased the trio nine blocks shot and fatally wounded Mc Dermott when, police said, he turned and slashed the officer with a knife.

Police said Mc Dermott remarked as he pulled the grenade's

Churches throughout Christendom threw open their doors to welcome all to traditional Christmas Eve ceremonies. In Bethlehem of Judea, a special Catholic midnight Mass beginning in the Chapel of St. Catherine will end in the Grotto of the Nativity, on the spot designated by His followers as the birthplace of Christ nearly 2,000 years ago.

At the same time a Protestant service will be held on nearby terraced slopes that mark the traditional spot where angels announced the birth of Christ to shepherds watching their flocks by night.

Many Pilgrims Arrive

Hundreds of pilgrims have arrived in the Holy Land to worship at the shrines connected with the birth of Christ. As in past Christmas times, the heavy border guards between Jordan and Israel —still technically at war—will step aside to permit passage to the holy places.

Pope Pius XII, in his 14th annual Christmas broadcast, again pleaded for peace and for help to the world's "poor and oppressed." He attacked communism for a condemnation of the Christian faith, a condemnation he said had

299 on Liberte Denied Leave on Immigration Law

Ordered to Stay Aboard for Refusing Proper Information on Red Ties

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Immigration authorities denied shore leave today to 299 of the French Liner Liberte's crew of 974 in the first application of the McCarran-Walter Act, which is aimed at keeping subversives from landing.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, district director of the U. S. Immigration Naturalization Service, made the announcement as the huge passenger ship docked at Pier 88 in the North river.

He said 27 of the 299 had been denied shore leave only tentatively because their seamen's papers were not in order.

Of the rest, all but two were ordered to stay aboard ship for refusing to answer questions put to them under the law.

Of the remaining two, one admitted past Communist membership and one had a criminal record.

Protests Made

Officials of France and some other nations have protested the crew restrictions imposed by the new law, which went into effect last midnight.

The Liberte was the first liner to reach port since then.

Crew members were inspected on the high seas in relation to the new law by Immigration Officer Leonard J. Martin, of East Orange, N. J., who left New York on the Liberte on Dec. 9.

Shaughnessy said Martin worked 14 eight-hour days to determine whether any crew member came within the 31 basic causes for exclusion set forth in the law.

Shaughnessy said that in 270 cases aboard the Liberte the crew-

Captured After Tavern Bombing

An off-duty patrolman, John H. Hurston (left), holds a gun on Mark Sutter, 19, believed to be a soldier in civilian clothes, as Sutter's dying companion, James Eugene McDermot, 19-year-old Marine, lies in a New York gutter Dec. 23. They were arrested after police said they tossed a phosphorous bomb into a tavern on Manhattan's upper West side. McDermott, shot in the head during the chase died later in New York's Knickerbocker Hospital.

Two, Involved in Bomb Incident, Held in Bail

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Two of three young servicemen involved in the bombing of a New York tavern faced the prospect today, at a judge's suggestion, of spending their Christmas leaves in jail.

Their companion was dead as a result of an encounter with policemen after the bombing, which caused injuries to 14 persons.

Magistrate Jack L. Nicoll yesterday held Mark Sutter and Patrick Shanahan, both 19, in $10,000 bail each—twice the amount asked by Assistant District Attorney Palmer Kennedy.

Nicoll, in the youth section of felony court, adjourned the case until Dec. 29 and advised the pair's parents to leave them in jail meanwhile so they could think about what they had done.

Sutter, an airman, and Shanahan, a sailor, were arrested yesterday after Marine Sgt. James Eugene Mc Dermott, also 19, set off a phosphorus grenade in an upper west side Manhattan tavern filled with Puerto Ricans. The three youths, who all lived on Amsterdam avenue in New York, were celebrating holiday leaves together.

A patrolman who chased the trio nine blocks shot and fatally wounded Mc Dermott when, police said, he turned and slashed the officer with a knife.

Police said Mc Dermott remarked as he pulled the grenade's

Old Cannon Found

Hong Kong (AP)—Two century-old cannon, which guarded this British Crown colony in the days of Queen Victoria, have been found in a tangle of jungle on hills overlooking this city. An artillery officer said the guns, weighing a ton apiece, must have been from some British man-o'-war and no doubt were the pride of early Hong Kong defenders. The dates stamped on the cannon showed they were made in 1835.

Farmers Income May Drop

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that almost everybody will be making more money at the end of 1952, than the farmer. An economic survey by the department predicts a gain in consumer income. Expenditures by consumers, business and government will probably exceed 1951 by 5%. The farmer will wind up with 3% to 5% less net income due to the price-cost squeeze on agriculture.

"Farmers' production expenses will probably reach an all-time high record this year, according to available estimates with higher wage scales for help, higher feed costs and higher machinery costs," says C. R. Schoby, president of the American Dairy Association.

"Farm machinery prices in many cases are now 165% higher than 1935-39," he added, "and efficient farming requires a lot more equipment than 20 years ago. A farmer starting out today can easily invest $5,000 to $8,000 in machinery which is out of the question for many young couples.

"But with high labor costs new machinery is a necessity if the dairy farm operator is to succeed. It is estimated that new machinery makes it possible to care for as much as 75% more crops and livestock than in the horse and milking-by-hand days. With these increased costs, dairying must be able to hold its own in the world economic picture if business and labor are to continue to prosper.

"Despite the help provided by research workers, machinery manufacturers and chemical companies, hundreds of dairy farmers have turned to less difficult operations such as raising beef cattle, grain growing or other crops.

"The consumer gets a lot more out of every dollar paid for milk than a decade ago. Milk today is an outstanding food buy. Milk prices to the consumer are lower than the average prices for all foods, according to government figures. The average employee's wages will buy 10% more milk; 21% more butter and 35% more cheese than 5 years ago.

"In addition the production of milk on the farm enriches the soil. Thus, the dairy farmer makes an outstanding contribution to the country's economic welfare by producing a food that benefits the health of the people and at the same time conducts an agricultural operation that enriches and restores the land."

Grange News

Grange Newsletter

Elmira in '53 is the word from State Grange Executive Committee following a recent trip of inspection to that city for the purpose of reviewing facilities for the annual sessions. Return to Elmira is almost by popular demand after the pleasant hospitality experienced there two years ago. A near record-breaking class of candidates turned out for the Sixth Degree on that occasion, and can be expected again, since the southern tier city is accessible to many big-number counties. Hedding Methodist Church will be the scene of business sessions and several evening programs, while facilities of a large theatre will be available for the accommodation of Sixth Degree candidates, visitors and spectators. Chemung county hosts are already hard at work to welcome Grangers next October. It's never too early to make your plans.

Farmer income during 1952 took another nose-dive compared with the previous year, and continued the down-hill trend it has taken since the 1947-48 peak. This despite our "war-time" prosperity for other segments of the economy and is the answer to those who have been under the impression that the American farmer never had it so good. Take-home pay per capita of the nation's farm folks has been 58 per cent of non-farm earners, and is of major concern to merchants, implement dealers and other sellers who realize that farm buying is the largest single consumer purchasing power, and as it goes, so goes the nation. Everything the farmer buys' in services, labor, feed—all are up, while the farm price for food, the farmer's pay, has gone steadily down. Today it's "down on the farm" if you mean living, but it's "up on the farm" if you are talking about producing. All this in spite of amazing totals of food production turned in this year.

Safety is the topic of the Grange this year—on farm, in the home and on the highways. It would be just as well to make a good start right now, and resolve that if you have to drive over the holidays the Happiest New Year for you and others will be a safe one.

Ohio holds second place in honey production in the United States, producing about 3,000,000 pounds annually.

An increase in home building in this area is evidenced by several new dwellings under construction, or planned, and preliminary steps toward construction on Route 32. Harold Miller of Ohioville and Robert Osterhoudt of New Paltz have purchased lots of Arthur E. DuBois. Charles Neisen and Herbert Phillips of New Paltz have purchased land of Kenneth E. DuBois, Sr., on which they are expected to build. Mrs. Gertrude Coulter of New Paltz will have a three-room bungalow moved from the Ohioville section to Route 32, south of New Paltz on her property in that section. A. Paradies will be in charge of the moving project. Mrs. Gertrude Strobel, supervisor of the 8th grade, Campus School in New Paltz, is occupying her newly built home on the crossroads leading from Route 32 to Clintondale.

Jitterbugging 'Shocking'

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya (AP)—Proponents of ballroom dancing have started a campaign here to oust hot swing and jive dancing. Banded together as the Selangor Society of Amateur Dancers, followers of graceful dancing have begun teaching about 80 youths and girls the niceties of ballroom style. "It is shocking to see the way some people dance these days—nothing but sheer vulgarity," an official of the society said.

The first Rotary Club was set up in Chicago in 1905.

Most players would find it easy to misplay the South hand shown today, giving the defenders a Christmas present of 100 points. When David Carter, well-known St. Louis expert, played the South hand, however, he preferred to give the Christmas present to his partner by playing the hand with brillance and care.

Dave won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, noting that he could afford to lose one diamond, one club, and only one trump trick. In order to have the best chance to hold the trump loss to one trick, Carter laid down the king of hearts at the second trick.

The idea was to lead a low heart and finesse dummy's eight if East happened to drop the nine or ten of hearts on the first round of that suit. This would provide against four trumps to the queen-ten or to the queen-nine in the West hand.

The safety play was a huge success. If declarer had taken the first trump trick with dummy's ace he would have lost two trump tricks to West.

West saw which way the wind was blowing, so he put up the ten of hearts when declarer continued with a low heart toward dummy's ace-eight. Dummy won with the ace of hearts, and South now had his second chance to lose the contract. A trump continuation would have been fatal.

Note how the play goes if declarer leads a third round of trumps at once. West wins with the queen of hearts and leads diamonds, forcing declarer to ruff the third round. South can now draw the last trump, but only by using up his own last trump. West must regain the lead with the king of clubs in time to set the contract by leading his last diamond.

Dave Carter avoided this trap by abandoning trumps temporarily. After winning the second round of trumps in dummy with the ace of hearts, declarer switched to clubs, finessing the ten around to West. West took the queen of diamonds and led another diamond, but declarer was able to ruff in dummy, thus preserving his own trump length.

He re-entered his hand with the ace of spades in order to lead the jack of hearts, forcing out West's queen.

South still had one trump more than West at this moment, so that he could afford to ruff the diamond continuation and still draw West's last trump. The rest was just a matter of cashing good tricks.

FAITH IN CHRIST BANISHES FEARS

Christ, whose birthday this is, personifies for the whole western world the great binding force of Love and the Brotherhood of Man. Even peoples who do not live under Christianity grasp this underlying meaning in His life.

Progress always has been uneven in the search for that happy state when the Brotherhood of Man should be fully realized. In the very best of worlds, it may never come quite within reach. Yet we must ever continue to strive for it.

With godless communism flowing across every weakly held frontier of faith, the task of moving forward to a universal understanding among men is today immeasurably more difficult. In grim necessity, the broad community of men of good will has made itself a fortress.

So long as such tyranny abounds, there can be no letting down the barriers nor laying down of weapons. But in the long interval of tension which seems to lie ahead, we still may work within the fortress for the high goals symbolized in Christ and this day.

Unhappily, even here the tension of world struggle has made men's nerves taut and their pulses pound with fear. In such a condition, friends become enemies and the mild enmities of politics flare into bitter hatreds.

Before we of the free nations can hope to dress the wounds of spirit being suffered now by millions of the enslaved, we must present to them minds that are cleansed of hatreds and hearts that are filled with kind concern for our own fellows.

We need not pretend it is easy to confront the frustrating indecision of the struggle, nor to thread our way in the most perplexing confusion known to history. But we must not therefore crumble and yield to forces of hate. In the clangor set up by our fears, we must not give away the Brotherhood of Man.

Christ is our symbol. We must make Him real. We must have faith in Him, and we must act upon that faith. If we win that victory within, then there need be no terror from the godless hordes without.

KEFAUVER'S RUNNING

Among the Democrats there still seems to be a lot of uncertainty as to who will hold the party reins in the next four years. But there is virtually no doubt about one thing: Senator Kefauver of Tennessee is running hard for the presidential nomination in 1956.

As a matter of fact, the senator got away from the post fairly early on the night of Nov. 4. Soon after it became evident that Governor Stevenson, who beat him out at Chicago for the 1952 nomination, was in for a licking, Kefauver started circulating about among his party colleagues, shaking hands, passing a word or two. The large collection of influential party men at the Washington headquarters spelled opportunity.

Since then he has made a high-minded speech or two, has recognized Stevenson as the titular leader but cast some doubt on how much that ought to mean, and has behaved continuously like a man bent on keeping in the public eye.

And he can do it, too, for he's got the Senate for a forum. Supporters of Stevenson for another try haven't yet figured out how to keep their man up front.

SAVING GREAT DOCUMENTS

The original parchment on which the Bill of Rights was written has been placed in a glass case filled with helium to protect it against the further ravages of time. This method is more effective in fighting deterioration of paper and inks than any in previous use and the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence have been placed in similar cases.

It is proper that Americans should evidence such concern for the preservation of precious documents. They serve as a link with our past and no one can view them without deriving new inspiration, new dedication to the liberties they proclaim and guarantee. These papers passed through the hands of Washington and Adams, what is written on them passed through the minds and hearts of Jefferson and Madison. They are the testament of wise, bold men, who loved freedom and willed it to us. It is well that we cherish the documents as a symbol of how much we cherish that heritage.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

CHRISTMAS, 1952

The holidays of all peoples are images of their nature. The Saturnalia of the decadent Romans expressed the materialism of a people who had once known the beauties of God's law, but had wandered into a world of physical excitement. The feast of the Maccabees of the Jews expresses the permanence of spirituality of this ancient people, who, no matter how materialism may master the many, always produces its minority of prophets and sages who love God.

Christmas cannot ever be a secular holiday. Christmas, in its material manifestation, may to some mean trees and tinsel, gifts and merchandise. This is only an external expression of a festival, often pagan, often without relationship to the inner soul of its civilization.

For Christmas presents the birthday of Jesus for remembrance—Jesus the rabbi, Jesus the prophet, Jesus the Christ, Jesus the only begotten son of God—depending upon the traditions of one's race. Such a birthday can only manifest itself in adoration of God. For whether one be Christian, Jew, or Moslem, it must be recognized that Jesus of Nazareth, in the land now called Israel, spoke God's word and it was carried to all the corners of the earth.

The spirit of the Old Testament lived in His words—the spirit, the soul, the character of the Torah and the prophets, of the sages and rabbis, of Moses and David, of Isaiah and Hillel. But the words, of themselves, are never important, for words are only the symbols that men use to speak the thoughts of their minds and to approach, however haltingly, the spirit in their souls.

In the magnificent structure of human virtue, the beatitudes, Jesus hands down to man the whole tradition of the human effort to translate the meaning of God's revelation to man in language. It is with that revelation of the Natural Law that the Judaic-Christian civilization swept over Europe.

The Jews have never been a proselyting people. They associated their faith with themselves and lived within their own world and their own tradition. Paul, however, set out to speak the spirit of this civilization to all mankind and brought it into the declining and confused Roman Empire as a refreshing zephyr. He brought Jesus to Western Europe and arrested the decay which was returning a great people to barbarism. It was this Judaic-Christian concept of life which rescued Europe from paganism.

Christmas, then, is the anniversary not only of the birth of Jesus but of the resurrection of our civilization. It is in this spirit that all those who love God, Jew, Christian, Moslem, can pause to think, not in terms of material benefits or of festive gaiety, but in the deep mood of religious reverence.

All the religious whose roots are in Palestinian soil, reject a materialistic concept of man. They all hold that God gave not only life but the "Rueh Hakodesh"—the Holy Spirit to man. And it is this Holy Spirit which is immortal, for it is life.

In the beatitudes, Jesus does not in any place speak of the grandeur of material things; He does not tarnish His words with the meaningless tinsel of things that can be counted. On the contrary, He says:

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: For theirs is the kingdom of Heaven.
Blessed are they that mourn: For they shall be comforted.
Blessed are the meek: For they shall inherit the earth.
Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: For they shall be filled.
Blessed are the merciful: For they shall obtain mercy.
Blessed are the pure in heart: For they shall see God. . . ."

Nor is Jesus tolerant of evil. He does not open the door wide to those who reject God's laws. He says of this:

". . . Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of Heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of Heaven. . . ."

This is Christmas and this needs repetition in the year 1952 when hundreds of millions of men and women are being dragged into a red hell of atheism and materialism. May God save our souls!

And may God's countenance shine upon you and your family and upon our beloved country on this day.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

HERPES ZOSTER (SHINGLES)

Because herpes zoster (shingles) lasts only from two to six weeks and does not cause death, it may be considered as more of a nuisance than a disease by other members of the family, but the patient suffers with severe pain and itching to the extent that he would gladly trade his symptoms for those of a more serious or dangerous disease.

Herpes zoster is believed to result from an emotional disturbance with an underlying virus infection causing groups or patches of tiny vesicles (pimples) which break down and cause some oozing. The course of these groups follows the distribution of a nerve or nerves coming out from inside of the spinal column, most frequently on the trunk or body but often also from the nerves of the spinal column of the neck (cranial nerves) thus extending over one side of head, face and neck.

While shingles runs a self-limited course of 2 to 6 weeks, complications may arise with severe pain lasting for months. In the Virginia Medical Monthly, Richmond, Drs. F. H. McGovern and G. S. Fitz-Hugh discuss herpes zoster of the neck or cranial nerves. These physicians state that when the disease affects the eye (herpes zoster opthalmicus) it is always diagnosed but when other nerves of the face and neck are affected, it may go undiagnosed because some of the usual symptoms are not present.

Although an attack of herpes zoster runs its course with or without treatment and like other self-limited diseases (scarlet fever, measles, chickenpox) is supposed to occur only once, Drs. McGovern and FitzHugh remind us that an attack of herpes zoster does not confer "permanent immunity" and that a second attack sometimes does occur.

Further, in elderly or run-down patients, a troublesome, painful neuritis may persist long after the eruption, itching and other symptoms have disappeared. As this painful neuritis is often stubborn, powerful pain-killers may be used and they may become habit-forming.

Attempt should be made to control pain with such analgosics (pain-killers) as the salicylates, with codeine or demerol in severe cases.

"Caution is necessary in the use of opiates, particularly cases with persistent neuralgia following herpes zoster (shingles)."

Sir, It's Something About Peace, Good Will to All Men

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — The Voice of America is beaming behind the Iron Curtain a satirical letter to Joe Stalin from Ukrainian refugee now in the United States. It reads:

"As you see from my address, 'father,' I have measured Europe with my own feet, lengthwise and crosswise, and finally I have reached America, which is so odious to you. This America is a unique and unusual country. But it will never reach the achievements of the Soviet Union.

"Why? Because the life here hasn't been put into proper order yet. People have no military cards; they are not listed at the police are not registered in 'housebooks.' The workers are not attached to the factories and can work whenever they want to. What kind of order is that?

"There are no factory committees, no professional committees, no employe committees, no group committees, no branch commitees. No one has any idea about shock-brigades, social competition or stakhanovism (the Soviet factory speedup system).

"But what bothers me most of all is that the five-year plan hasn't been introduced here yet, and that obligations (debt payments) of the state loan are not forced upon you, although working people here have lots of money. Because there is no state loan, they are compelled to save their money in capitalistic banks, or to buy cars in which they ride around the country in their leisure time.

(Signed) "Your former 'son' —now a lucky 'orphan,' Alexander."

Money in Politics

Four hard-working members of Congress are exploding the notion that Democrats and Republicans cannot function together in a non-partisan manner for the national good.

They are Democrat Hale Boggs of Louisiana, chairman; Republicans Kenneth Keating, New York; William McCullough, Ohio, with Democrat Frank Karsten, Missouri, of the Campaign Investigating Committee. They are preparing some sweeping amendments for our oxcart election laws.

Here are some recommendations they will make to the next Congress:

A proposal that expenditures in presidential-congressional primary campaigns and at national political conventions be regulated by law. Few people realize that there is now no limit on primary spending. The sky's the limit.

For instance, supporters of Taft, Kefauver, Eisenhower, Russell, MacArthur, Kerr spent literally as much as they could get their hands on in the Democratic and Republican primaries. It has been estimated that the Citizens for Eisenhower spent $1,200,000 prior to the national convention in Chicago. Kerr and some of the others also had lavish exchequers.

There is no way of estimating the tremendous sums expended at the national conventions of both parties. But Boggs and his colleagues hope to put a ceiling on spending for presidential candidates, or at least make the candidates file a public report of their convention expenditures.

'Education' Lobbies

The law requires that the Republican and Democratic national committees limit their spending to $3,000,000 each in a presidential campaign. However, a favorite subterfuge of both parties is to set up dummy state and local committees, which funnel money to political candidates through the back door, paying for radio time, etc.

The Boggs group will recommend that the two national committees be allowed to spend about $10,000,000 in a presidential race—reasonable in these times—but will urge a sharp curb on expenditures by dummy committees. The House probers also will urge Congress to crack down on the practice of making contributions through children—including babies—to get around the Corrupt Practices Act, which sets a $5,000 limit on individual contributions to a political candidate.

Corporations and labor unions must publicly report their contributions in a political campaign. However, there is no such restrictions on lobbies. They spend millions for political ends under the guise of "educating" the public. What's more, some lobbies that engage in politics use the same "educational" gimmick to escape paying taxes. Boggs will strongly recommend remedial action by Congress.

Ike and Small Business

Some salient ideas on how the Eisenhower administration can assist little business in fighting monopoly are revealed in a recent survey of over 500 small manufacturers and distributors in Minneapolis, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Phoenix, Ariz.

The survey was personally conducted by an outgoing official who has nothing to gain by it—John Horne, chief of the Small Defense Plants Agency. Incidentally, an overwhelming number of businessmen interviewed were Republicans who voted for Eisenhower.

One point repeatedly made to Horne was that small businessmen do not need or want "special favors" from the government. They feel that they can perform competitively and effectively even though their production costs may be greater than big competitors'.

"What they want chiefly," says the survey, "is a federal agency, responsible directly to the President and Congress, whose sole interest will be the problems of small business, and with enough authority to remove unfair obstacles and impediments and to assure them equal opportunity."

Preponderant opinion of small businessmen was that the Small Defense Plants Agency (1) should be independent of the Department of Commerce, despite the announced intention of Ike's secretary of commerce, Sinclair Weeks, to take over SDPA functions, and (2) should have more authority to help small firms financially.

Almost to a man, the 500 company heads said that the Commerce Department was traditionally too "big-business-minded" to guarantee small contractors an equitable share of government business. They also thought the SDPA, or similar agency, should have direct authority to funnel contracts to small firms.

Tax Relief

Little business firms surveyed also favored:

Tax relief, possibly through a special, rapid tax amortization provision for small contractors.

A revision of the armed services "specification" policies, which are now rigged against little business and enable contract bid forms to be tailor-made to fit the facilities of favored, big contractors.

More time to prepare bids on forthcoming procurements. As it is, big concerns are often favored by advance "inside leaks" on future defense contracts, giving them a head start on small competitors.

A fairer screening of contracts so that small business will have a better opportunity to bid on desirable contracts, instead of having to be satisfied with the "crumbs," that is, contracts big business doesn't want because they are difficult or less profitable to handle.

Meaning of Words Seen as Having Vital Bearing on T-H Law Status

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 23—When the headlines tell the country that labor leaders are saying they now are for "amendment" instead of "repeal" of the Taft-Hartley act, the incident serves to accentuate how easily the public can be misled by mere words that have a phony meaning.

Anybody who knows anything at all about procedures in writing legislation is aware that an "amendment" can actually repeal a whole section of a previous law, and that, if "repeal" is literally meant, then the entire law is wiped from the statute books and there is no legislation on that particular subject in force until a substitute law is passed.

Labor leaders for the last several years have shouted so loudly for "repeal" of the Taft-Hartley act that they never cared to admit that something would have to take its place simultaneously or a gap would occur during which the country would not have a collective-bargaining law or any other regulation of the relations between labor unions and management.

The strategy always was to get the Taft-Hartley act "repealed" completely as a matter of tactics so that, with no law on the books, the opponents of what the labor unions might propose would be under a panicky pressure to vote quickly for almost anything in order to get a labor-management law adopted.

Yet, in a broad sense, the problem always has been how to rewrite the Taft-Hartley act so that the moment the rewriting was done—that is, the amendments were adopted—the country would go instantly from one labor-management law to another, thus avoiding legal technicalities and litigation that might arise from an interval in which no labor law was in effect.

When the labor leaders chose to use the word "repeal" as a slogan, many candidates for public office were misled by it. Thus Gov. Stevenson earlier this year said he favored "amendments" to the Taft-Hartley act, but this didn't satisfy the labor leaders' ideas, and in due time on the stump the Democratic nominee shifted his position to suit the political winds and came out for "repeal," with the explanation that the Taft-Hartley act was so complex that it had to be rewritten entirely. He confused a complete rewrite with a complete repeal. For the rewriting job itself didn't necessitate "repeal."

Sen. Russell, of Georgia, an aspirant for the Democratic Presidential nomination, got caught last July in the verbal acrobatics about "repeal" and "amendment" and came out for "repeal," only to cause great anxiety among Senators of his own party in the South who knew the implications of the battle over the two words—"amendment" and "repeal."

What's going to happen now is that the Taft-Hartley act is going to be rewritten by amendments. Certain sections labor itself will not want to change. These are the provisions lifted bodily from the Wagner labor relations act, which was on the statute books from 1935 until that law itself was "amended" in 1947 to include the new sections of the so-called Taft-Hartley act.

The fight no longer is over procedure but substance. Labor union leaders would have been glad to wipe out Taft-Hartley altogether, because they really wanted to get rid of the provisions that prohibit the "closed shop" monopoly. Now they will have to mobilize enough votes in Congress to eliminate that section as a concrete issue. It seems unlikely that Congress will remove the ban on "closed shops," but it is possible that some of the much-debated features of the "union shop" will be clarified. Likewise, there will be a big tussle over what is to be done in national emergencies to prevent strikes from paralyzing the economic system.

Labor could have obtained two years ago from Congress clarifying amendments and the removal of certain objectionable features of the Taft-Hartley act if the union chiefs had been disposed to allow the members of Congress controlled by them to permit amendments to pass. But the politically minded among labor's chieftains thought there would be a better chance in the 1952 election to get a bigger pro-labor majority, so all attention was concentrated on the argument for "repeal." This slogan has about outlived its usefulness for labor, and it is encouraging to the cause of labor-management peace that efforts are shortly to be made to "revise" the Taft-Hartley act. For no law of this type can be considered permanent, because experience with decisions of the National Labor Relations Board and the Federal court constantly point up ambiguities and contradictions.

It is significant to note, however, the contrast between the Republican party's willingness to amend or rewrite the Taft-Hartley act—something that has been apparent ever since 1950—and the attitude of the Democratic leadership. From the time of the passage of the Wagner labor relations act in 1935 down to the time the Taft-Hartley act was passed in 1947, the Democratic party refused absolutely to consider amendments of any kind, much less "repeal." The Republican party seems already to be more tolerant than were the Democratic party leaders.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Tom Stokes, the Washington journalist who turned apologist for the essentials of the New Deal, recently muttered another essay against the growing practice of "investigating" persons and issues by congressional authority. This has brought disgrace on the State Department, the Treasury, the Internal Revenue and the Department of Justice. It also has exposed as traitors many individuals of the Frankfurter Harvard law apparatus who were seeded into our government with the late Roosevelt's knowledge and approval soon after he assumed power. Alger Hiss is the most notorious of these but by no means the only one.

The Washington press corps has been laggard and negligent throughout this era.

Stokes was a good reporter who, unfortunately, proved to have a sentimental apparatus instead of a reasoning mind. I seldom let my emotions embarrass my critical examinations, but I feel obliged to say that Tom Stokes is brave and honest in his feelings.

Had he pursued the bent that led him to Kentucky in 1938 to expose the use of WPA money and Harry Hopkins' corrupt instincts and organization to win re-election for Alben Barkley to the Senate, all with the satanic blessing of Mr. Big himself, he would have made a great deal more money and a greater name for himself.

He knew he was turning an indifferent side to syndicate clients in developing a bleeding heart to the neglect of wonderful opportunities to expose rascalities now coming to light. He thus earned a little star in his crown but put himself in the plight of defender of the regime which offered the civil rights and Social Security frauds to divert attention from its basic crimes.

It is a reporter's job to get news and news is where you find it, often in the White House. Tom Stokes, unfortunately for any attempt to justify his course on the ground of incompetence, proved in the Barkley-Hopkins case that he was a champion of his craft. He won a Pulitzer award at a time when the bauble had a prestige far above that of the trashy writs and plaques now used as come-on for the banquet departments of the Waldorf, the Mayflower and the various hyphen plazas.

I doubt that Tom sees himself as he seems to others when he objects to the abuse of the congressional grand jury power to wring information out of citizens haled into the great board-rooms of the Capitol or soiled little hotel parlors in Omaha. The fact is that ever since Harding's time the Washington reporters have been losing their initiative and relying more and more on congressmen, senators, "investigators" hired to tap wires and dredge up documents, and on secretaries and attorneys assigned to these committees. Some of the statesmen have low standards, not necessarily implying low morals in the individuals. They are ordinary county seat lawyers or machine politicians without special education who enjoy prying into secrets and blabbing them over a drink or the phone, especially to embarrass their political rivals.

The chief investigator of one of our congressional bodies told me that he really couldn't object to the secrecy of income tax returns even of men whose guilt probably would be shown by their returns. He said that whenever the committee could persuade Roosevelt to release a return for the committee's inspection, the brothers came a'running to read the details. It goes without saying that Roosevelt released only the returns of his political enemies and never disclosed his own, his mother's, his wife's or Elliott's.

Actually, committees do more digging and turn up more information than all the reporters in Washington. The press put itself

FAITH IN CHRIST BANISHES FEARS

Christ, whose birthday this is, personifies for the whole western world the great binding force of Love and the Brotherhood of Man. Even peoples who do not live under Christianity grasp this underlying meaning in His life.

Progress always has been uneven in the search for that happy state when the Brotherhood of Man should be fully realized. In the very best of worlds, it may never come quite within reach. Yet we must ever continue to strive for it.

With godless communism flowing across every weakly held frontier of faith, the task of moving forward to a universal understanding among men is today immeasurably more difficult. In grim necessity, the broad community of men of good will has made itself a fortress.

So long as such tyranny abounds, there can be no letting down the barriers nor laying down of weapons. But in the long interval of tension which seems to lie ahead, we still may work within the fortress for the high goals symbolized in Christ and this day.

Unhappily, even here the tension of world struggle has made men's nerves taut and their pulses pound with fear. In such a condition, friends become enemies and the mild enmities of politics flare into bitter hatreds.

Before we of the free nations can hope to dress the wounds of spirit being suffered now by millions of the enslaved, we must present to them minds that are cleansed of hatreds and hearts that are filled with kind concern for our own fellows.

We need not pretend it is easy to confront the frustrating indecision of the struggle, nor to thread our way in the most perplexing confusion known to history. But we must not therefore crumble and yield to forces of hate. In the clangor set up by our fears, we must not give away the Brotherhood of Man.

Christ is our symbol. We must make Him real. We must have faith in Him, and we must act upon that faith. If we win that victory within, then there need be no terror from the godless hordes without.

KEFAUVER'S RUNNING

Among the Democrats there still seems to be a lot of uncertainty as to who will hold the party reins in the next four years. But there is virtually no doubt about one thing: Senator Kefauver of Tennessee is running hard for the presidential nomination in 1956.

As a matter of fact, the senator got away from the post fairly early on the night of Nov. 4. Soon after it became evident that Governor Stevenson, who beat him out at Chicago for the 1952 nomination, was in for a licking, Kefauver started circulating about among his party colleagues, shaking hands, passing a word or two. The large collection of influential party men at the Washington headquarters spelled opportunity.

Since then he has made a high-minded speech or two, has recognized Stevenson as the titular leader but cast some doubt on how much that ought to mean, and has behaved continuously like a man bent on keeping in the public eye.

And he can do it, too, for he's got the Senate for a forum. Supporters of Stevenson for another try haven't yet figured out how to keep their man up front.

SAVING GREAT DOCUMENTS

The original parchment on which the Bill of Rights was written has been placed in a glass case filled with helium to protect it against the further ravages of time. This method is more effective in fighting deterioration of paper and inks than any in previous use and the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence have been placed in similar cases.

It is proper that Americans should evidence such concern for the preservation of precious documents. They serve as a link with our past and no one can view them without deriving new inspiration, new dedication to the liberties they proclaim and guarantee. These papers passed through the hands of Washington and Adams, what is written on them passed through the minds and hearts of Jefferson and Madison. They are the testament of wise, bold men, who loved freedom and willed it to us. It is well that we cherish the documents as a symbol of how much we cherish that heritage.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

CHRISTMAS, 1952

The holidays of all peoples are images of their nature. The Saturnalia of the decadent Romans expressed the materialism of a people who had once known the beauties of God's law, but had wandered into a world of physical excitement. The feast of the Maccabees of the Jews expresses the permanence of spirituality of this ancient people, who, no matter how materialism may master the many, always produces its minority of prophets and sages who love God.

Christmas cannot ever be a secular holiday. Christmas, in its material manifestation, may to some mean trees and tinsel, gifts and merchandise. This is only an external expression of a festival, often pagan, often without relationship to the inner soul of its civilization.

For Christmas presents the birthday of Jesus for remembrance—Jesus the rabbi, Jesus the prophet, Jesus the Christ, Jesus the only begotten son of God—depending upon the traditions of one's race. Such a birthday can only manifest itself in adoration of God. For whether one be Christian, Jew, or Moslem, it must be recognized that Jesus of Nazareth, in the land now called Israel, spoke God's word and it was carried to all the corners of the earth.

The spirit of the Old Testament lived in His words—the spirit, the soul, the character of the Torah and the prophets, of the sages and rabbis, of Moses and David, of Isaiah and Hillel. But the words, of themselves, are never important, for words are only the symbols that men use to speak the thoughts of their minds and to approach, however haltingly, the spirit in their souls.

In the magnificent structure of human virtue, the beatitudes, Jesus hands down to man the whole tradition of the human effort to translate the meaning of God's revelation to man in language. It is with that revelation of the Natural Law that the Judaic-Christian civilization swept over Europe.

The Jews have never been a proselyting people. They associated their faith with themselves and lived within their own world and their own tradition. Paul, however, set out to speak the spirit of this civilization to all mankind and brought it into the declining and confused Roman Empire as a refreshing zephyr. He brought Jesus to Western Europe and arrested the decay which was returning a great people to barbarism. It was this Judaic-Christian concept of life which rescued Europe from paganism.

Christmas, then, is the anniversary not only of the birth of Jesus but of the resurrection of our civilization. It is in this spirit that all those who love God, Jew, Christian, Moslem, can pause to think, not in terms of material benefits or of festive gaiety, but in the deep mood of religious reverence.

All the religious whose roots are in Palestinian soil, reject a materialistic concept of man. They all hold that God gave not only life but the "Rueh Hakodesh"—the Holy Spirit to man. And it is this Holy Spirit which is immortal, for it is life.

In the beatitudes, Jesus does not in any place speak of the grandeur of material things; He does not tarnish His words with the meaningless tinsel of things that can be counted. On the contrary, He says:

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: For theirs is the kingdom of Heaven.
Blessed are they that mourn: For they shall be comforted.
Blessed are the meek: For they shall inherit the earth.
Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: For they shall be filled.
Blessed are the merciful: For they shall obtain mercy.
Blessed are the pure in heart: For they shall see God. . . ."

Nor is Jesus tolerant of evil. He does not open the door wide to those who reject God's laws. He says of this:

". . . Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of Heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of Heaven. . . ."

This is Christmas and this needs repetition in the year 1952 when hundreds of millions of men and women are being dragged into a red hell of atheism and materialism. May God save our souls!

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

HERPES ZOSTER (SHINGLES)

Because herpes zoster (shingles) lasts only from two to six weeks and does not cause death, it may be considered as more of a nuisance than a disease by other members of the family, but the patient suffers with severe pain and itching to the extent that he would gladly trade his symptoms for those of a more serious or dangerous disease.

Herpes zoster is believed to result from an emotional disturbance with an underlying virus infection causing groups or patches of tiny vesicles (pimples) which break down and cause some oozing. The course of these groups follows the distribution of a nerve or nerves coming out from inside of the spinal column, most frequently on the trunk or body but often also from the nerves of the spinal column of the neck (cranial nerves) thus extending over one side of head, face and neck.

While shingles runs a self-limited course of 2 to 6 weeks, complications may arise with severe pain lasting for months. In the Virginia Medical Monthly, Richmond, Drs. F. H. McGovern and G. S. FitzHugh discuss herpes zoster of the neck or cranial nerves. These physicians state that when the disease affects the eye (herpes zoster opthalmicus) it is always diagnosed but when other nerves of the face and neck are affected, it may go undiagnosed because some of the usual symptoms are not present.

Although an attack of herpes zoster runs its course with or without treatment and like other self-limited diseases (scarlet fever, measles, chickenpox) is supposed to occur only once, Drs. McGovern and FitzHugh remind us that an attack of herpes zoster does not confer "permanent immunity" and that a second attack sometimes does occur.

Further, in elderly or run-down patients, a troublesome, painful neuritis may persist long after the eruption, itching and other symptoms have disappeared. As this painful neuritis is often stubborn, powerful pain-killers may be used and they may become habit-forming.

Attempt should be made to control pain with such analgosics (pain-killers) as the salicylates, with codeine or demerol in severe cases.

"Caution is necessary in the use of opiates, particularly cases with persistent neuralgia following herpes zoster (shingles)."

Sir, It's Something About Peace, Good Will to All Men

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — The Voice of America is beaming behind the Iron Curtain a satirical letter to Joe Stalin from Ukrainian refugee now in the United States. It reads:

"As you see from my address, 'father,' I have measured Europe with my own feet, lengthwise and crosswise, and finally I have reached America, which is so odious to you. This America is a unique and unusual country. But it will never reach the achievements of the Soviet Union.

"Why? Because the life here hasn't been put into proper order yet. People have no military cards; they are not listed at the police are not registered in 'house-books.' The workers are not attached to the factories and can work whenever they want to. What kind of order is that?

"There are no factory committees, no professional committees, no employe committees, no group committees, no branch commitees. No one has any idea about shock-brigades, social competition or stakhanovism (the Soviet factory speedup system).

"But what bothers me most of all is that the five-year plan hasn't been introduced here yet, and that obligations (debt payments) of the state loan are not forced upon you, although working people here have lots of money. Because there is no state loan, they are compelled to save their money in capitalistic banks, or to buy cars in which they ride around the country in their leisure time.

(Signed) "Your former 'son' —now a lucky 'orphan,' Alexander."

Money in Politics

Four hard-working members of Congress are exploding the notion that Democrats and Republicans cannot function together in a non-partisan manner for the national good.

They are Democrat Hale Boggs of Louisiana, chairman; Republicans Kenneth Keating, New York; William McCullough, Ohio, with Democrat Frank Karsten, Missouri, of the Campaign Investigating Committee. They are preparing some sweeping amendments for our oxcart election laws.

Here are some recommendations they will make to the next Congress:

A proposal that expenditures in presidential-congressional primary campaigns and at national political conventions be regulated by law. Few people realize that there is now no limit on primary spending. The sky's the limit.

For instance, supporters of Taft, Kefauver, Eisenhower, Russell, MacArthur, Kerr spent literally as much as they could get their hands on in the Democratic and Republican primaries. It has been estimated that the Citizens for Eisenhower spent $1,200,000 prior to the national convention in Chicago. Kerr and some of the others also had lavish exchequers.

There is no way of estimating the tremendous sums expended at the national conventions of both parties. But Boggs and his colleagues hope to put a ceiling on spending for presidential candidates, or at least make the candidates file a public report of their convention expenditures.

'Education' Lobbies

The law requires that the Republican and Democratic national committees limit their spending to $3,000,000 each in a presidential campaign. However, a favorite subterfuge of both parties is to set up dummy state and local committees, which funnel money to political candidates through the back door, paying for radio time, etc.

The Boggs group will recommend that the two national committees be allowed to spend about $10,000,000 in a presidential race—reasonable in these times—but will urge a sharp curb on expenditures by dummy committees. The House probers also will urge Congress to crack down on the practice of making contributions through children—including babies—to get around the Corrupt Practices Act, which sets a $5,000 limit on individual contributions to a political candidate.

Corporations and labor unions must publicly report their contributions in a political campaign. However, there is no such restrictions on lobbies. They spend millions for political ends under the guise of "educating" the public. What's more, some lobbies that engage in politics use the same "educational" gimmick to escape paying taxes. Boggs will strongly recommend remedial action by Congress.

Ike and Small Business

Some salient ideas on how the Eisenhower administration can assist little business in fighting monopoly are revealed in a recent survey of over 500 small manufacturers and distributors in Minneapolis, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Phoenix, Ariz.

The survey was personally conducted by an outgoing official who has nothing to gain by it—John Horne, chief of the Small Defense Plants Agency. Incidentally, an overwhelming number of businessmen interviewed were Republicans who voted for Eisenhower.

One point repeatedly made to Horne was that small businessmen do not need or want "special favors" from the government. They feel that they can perform competitively and effectively even though their production costs may be greater than big competitors'.

They also thought the SDPA, or similar agency, should have direct authority to funnel contracts to small firms.

Tax Relief

Little business firms surveyed also favored:

Tax relief, possibly through a special, rapid tax amortization provision for small contractors.

A revision of the armed services "specification" policies, which are now rigged against little business and enable contract bid forms to be tailor-made to fit the facilities of favored, big contractors.

More time to prepare bids on forthcoming procurements. As it is, big concerns are often favored by advance "inside leaks" on future defense contracts, giving them a head start on small competitors.

A fairer screening of contracts so that small business will have a better opportunity to bid on desirable contracts, instead of having to be satisfied with the "crumbs," that is, contracts big business doesn't want because they are difficult or less profitable to handle.

This slogan has about outlived its usefulness for labor, and it is encouraging to the cause of labor-management peace that efforts are shortly to be made to "revise" the Taft-Hartley act. For no law of this type can be considered permanent, because experience with decisions of the National Labor Relations Board and the Federal court constantly point up ambiguities and contradictions.

It is significant to note, however, the contrast between the Republican party's willingness to amend or rewrite the Taft-Hartley act—something that has been apparent ever since 1950—and the attitude of the Democratic leadership. From the time of the passage of the Wagner labor relations act in 1935 down to the time the Taft-Hartley act was passed in 1947, the Democratic party refused absolutely to consider amendments of any kind, much less "repeal." The Republican party seems already to be more tolerant than were the Democratic party leaders.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Tom Stokes, the Washington journalist who turned apologist for the essentials of the New Deal, recently muttered another essay against the growing practice of "investigating" persons and issues by congressional authority. This has brought disgrace on the State Department, the Treasury, the Internal Revenue and the Department of Justice. It also has exposed as traitors many individuals of the Frankfurter Harvard law apparatus who were seeded into our government with the late Roosevelt's knowledge and approval soon after he assumed power. Alger Hiss is the most notorious of these but by no means the only one.

The Washington press corps has been laggard and negligent throughout this era.

Stokes was a good reporter who, unfortunately, proved to have a sentimental apparatus instead of a reasoning mind. I seldom let my emotions embarrass my critical examinations, but I feel obliged to say that Tom Stokes is brave and honest in his feelings.

Had he pursued the bent that led him to Kentucky in 1938 to expose the use of WPA money and Harry Hopkins' corrupt instincts and organization to win re-election for Alben Barkley to the Senate, all with the satanic blessing of Mr. Big himself, he would have made a great deal more money and a greater name for himself.

He knew he was turning an indifferent side to syndicate clients in developing a bleeding heart to the neglect of wonderful opportunities to expose rascalities now coming to light. He thus earned a little star in his crown but put himself in the plight of defender of the regime which offered the civil rights and Social Security frauds to divert attention from its basic crimes.

It is a reporter's job to get news and news is where you find it, often in the White House. Tom Stokes, unfortunately for any attempt to justify his course on the ground of incompetence, proved in the Barkley-Hopkins case that he was a champion of his craft. He won a Pulitzer award at a time when the bauble had a prestige far above that of the trashy writs and plaques now used as come-on for the banquet departments of the Waldorf, the Mayflower and the various hyphen plazas.

I doubt that Tom sees himself as he seems to others when he objects to the abuse of the congressional grand jury power to wring information out of citizens haled into the great board-rooms of the Capitol or soiled little hotel parlors in Omaha. The fact is that ever since Harding's time the Washington reporters have been losing their initiative and relying more and more on congressmen, senators, "investigators" hired to tap wires and dredge up documents, and on secretaries and attorneys assigned to these committees. Some of the statesmen have low standards, not necessarily implying low morals in the individuals. They are ordinary county seat lawyers or machine politicians without special education who enjoy prying into secrets and blabbing them over a drink or the phone, especially to embarrass their political rivals.

The chief investigator of one of our congressional bodies told me that he really couldn't object to the secrecy of income tax returns even of men whose guilt probably would be shown by their returns. He said that whenever the committee could persuade Roosevelt to release a return for the committee's inspection, the brothers came a'running to read the details. It goes without saying that Roosevelt released only the returns of his political enemies and never disclosed his own, his mother's, his wife's or Elliott's.

Actually, committees do more digging and turn up more information than all the reporters in Washington. The press put itself

Weekly Food Review

(By The Associated Press)

Christmas turkeys cost slightly more this week than the Thanksgiving Day gobblers did. Hams and chicken held close to the Thanksgiving-time levels in most places, beef and lamb roasts were a little cheaper, and geese were among the lowest-priced poultry buys.

In general, fresh fruits and vegetables were a shade lower than just before that earlier feast day, most nuts except walnuts were a little higher, and holiday specialties like figs and dates, mincemeat and plum puddings, averaged unchanged.

Stores everywhere bulged with abundant foods and many retailers said their sales this year were topping all yuletide records.

Turkeys, although up 1 to 4 cents a pound compared with Thanksgiving, were as much as 8 cents below last Christmas-time. Dealers said the trend was more and more toward eviscerated and ready-to-cook birds.

"Last year this type of turkeys amounted to only about 10 per cent of our total turkey sales," said the meat buyer for a major store chain. "At Thanksgiving time the percentage was up to 25, and this week it has been running close to 35.

Demand Is Help

"With the demand growing like that, we've been able to improve our dressing facilities and trim costs, so that prices for eviscerated turkeys at holiday-time now are down to what folks used to have to pay for standard 'New York Dressed' turkeys."

Pork items other than hams—were about the only meat items which failed to show widespread price reductions this week. The price cuts ranged as high as 11 cents a pound on some beef and lamb roasts. Frying chickens were down 2 to 4 cents.

Eggs generally held about steady after advancing a few cents a dozen late next week. Butter was unchanged.

Several fresh vegetables edged a little higher compared with last week as unfavorable growing weather in the south affected supplies. However, beets, carrots, lettuce, onions, potatoes, spinach tomatoes were lower.

Navel oranges were about unchanged but other types were a trifle cheaper, along with grapefruit and pears. Tangerines held steady pricewise even although shipments were heavy, indicating lively demand. Apples were unchanged, grapes a little higher.

Specials Galore

Shopping "specials" being heavily promoted by the big chain and independent markets ranged all over the feast menu from shrimps to cheeses and dinner mints. Most frequently cited, aside from the meats already mentioned: Oysters, celery, olives, cranberries, squash, yams, yellow turnips, stuffing bread, chestnuts, tangerines, oranges, grapefruit, apples, grapes, fruit cakes, mincemeat, plum puddings, Christmas candy and cookies, and nuts.

The Agriculture Department stressed citrus fruits as most plentiful foods for thrifty buying this week. It noted that less than a quarter-century ago, output of oranges in this country (including tangerines) came to less than 32 million boxes, while production this year may exceed 126 million.

Said the New York Fruit Auction Corporation: "Not so many years ago fresh fruit at Christmas time was a rare luxury and an apple, orange and a few nuts in the Christmas stocking was a real treat. If you're wondering what to put in those charity packages, there are still many children right in your own city who would be thrilled with an apple or an orange on Christmas."

Luxury Surprises German

Dallas (AP)—The luxury of American living as expressed by the numbers of automobiles, television sets, individual private homes and modern appliances in use by all income groups has surprised a visiting German newspaper editor. Horst Altmann, 30, of Kiel, Germany, is studying social and living conditions in the United States under a State Department program. "The immense numbers of cars crowding your streets could not be imagined by the European," he said.

A merry Christmas to all.

Christmas

"Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying 'Where is He that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen His star in the east, and are come to worship Him.'

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

And they said unto him, 'In Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet.'

Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem and said, 'Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found Him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.'

When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures they presented unto him gifts: gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

AS WE APPROACH THE EVE OF CHRISTMAS, and The Star again rises in the east, all Central Hudson people extend to you and yours their very best wishes for a bright holiday . . . a very merry Christmas.

Again it's Christmas! As we pay homage tomorrow to the nativity of our Saviour, let us in our devotions rejoice and give thanks for the privilege of being free men—Americans—free to worship and to conduct our daily lives without fear of persecution. Let us preserve that heritage.

Let us profit by the teachings of Christ to be charitable to our fellow men—let us pray for those who are burdened with the yoke of tyranny, for the sick and those in grief—for unity among nations and for divine guidance to our chosen leaders to work in harmony.

Mona Lisa Is Hit Stamp

Frankfurt, Germany (AP) — An Italian masterpiece that is the best known painting in France's Louvre has become West Germany's most popular postage stamp. Last April postal authorities here issued a 20 pfenning stamp bearing an excellent color reproduction of Leonardo Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa." It was a commemorative issue on the 500th anniversary of the Italian master's birth. The new stamp caught on at once with philatelists and already more than a million have been printed. German postal authorities say that collectors throughout the world have written for stamps. England is the biggest customer. There is no limit on the issue and Mona Lisa stamps will be printed according to demand.

Early Christians were often falsely accused of human sacrifices in their religious ceremonies.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

After the joys of Christmas are over we shall come back to earth, but let us hope that we shall not come back with a thud.

The Ruminator has no wish to jar your holiday season with economic conundrums, but this is supposed to be a contrary column having to do with social and business matters; that is, more about the tintinnabulation of money than of bells.

And these days when you speak of money almost the first thing that pops into your mind is the gobs of good U. S. lucre that we have been pouring, and doubtless shall continue to pour, into the coffers of our "allies." (To insert another contrary thought, I don't just know why we think of the other anti-Communist nations as "allies" when in their relations with us they place so much emphasis on what we must do for them. The alliance is altogether too one-sided, obviously. Consider the coming Coronation: What possible excuse can there be for this display of jewels and ermine and expenditure of money when Great Britain persistently points out how close to national bankruptcy she now is; how she needs our aid to avoid bankruptcy?)

The North Atlantic Council (NATO's "executive committee") has been soberly debating in Paris the demands placed upon the various member-nations for western-European defense. They came up, as you have read, with a decisive cut in defense appropriations—a slice that caused Ridgway to go on record with a warning that they cut dangerously deep, that defense will be seriously endangered.

The NATO situation is like Korea, in that it is a dilemma: whichever decision is made (to spend or to cut) may be wrong.

The truth of the matter is, to be contrary to general assumptions, no one can know if the military commitments demanded of the NATO nations are more than they can stand. This is a mighty important question because if NATO can "prove" (but without actual proof, because there isn't any demonstrable proof)—if NATO can prove that the member-nations must cut back, then the next step is to call on Uncle Sam.

This matter coming up at this time is very touchy because the new Administration hasn't been heard from formally as to what its policy will be.

The Ruminator subscribes to two or three "letters" and bulletins published abroad. It is quite an eye-opener to read them these days because they are so full of "America." Commentators write about us, seemingly, more fully than about themselves. Certainly, western Europe has become American-minded while we still have great difficulty in becoming intelligently foreign-minded.

Almost everything you read, from an economic standpoint, swings back toward the United States. We have mentioned above the leaning toward us regarding NATO.

You will find numerous other subjects slanted in our direction.

You will find, for instance, that the foreign economic press (including Canada) plugs constantly (and knowingly, but the latter is "bluff" in my guess) for another devaluation of the dollar (for a sensational increase, that is, in the price of gold). You do not find thinking people over here arguing for dollar-devaluation. (Indeed, the conservative gold-minded economists in this country preach for a return to the free gold standard at the current gold-price of $35 an ounce. This would be conservative; the opposite of hiking the price of gold and remaining on a managed currency basis, which is a radical method of money manipulation.)

Why do the folks abroad want a boost in gold prices? Mainly to ease their money problems with our windfall profit on our present gold holdings. They are only concerned with grinding one side of the axe, obviously; the side that cuts them into our wealth.

Other subjects are tariffs, purchases abroad, and so on. The slogan-of-the-moment is "Trade Not Aid." But you can take a contrary view of this, too, if you wish to. If trade is to be artificially stimulated by our efforts (lowering tariffs, more buying abroad, and similar plans) then someone is going to pay the bill just the same. In one case it is the government (which is to say, you and me) and in another it will be a given group of citizens. Let us always remember "there ain't no such thing as free lunch."

As the Ruminator stated when he commenced this column, it is concerned with socio-economic problems. We have touched particularly on "foreign problems" because there is no doubt whatever that when the holidays are over, and Truman and Acheson have returned to private life, international problems will be in the forefront of national policies. You can perhaps overlook domestic matters, but you will need to look sharp both east and west in 1953.

Secretary Earns More

San Diego, Calif., (AP) — This city has a secretary who gets more pay than her boss. Ruby Schneider, secretary to Mayor John Butler, receives $5,004 a year under her civil service rating. Butler gets only $5,000. The mayor's salary hasn't been changed since it was fixed by city charter in 1932.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I saw recently in The Freeman the advertisement of the Shanty Store, local dealer of "America's finest overall . . . Levi's." Why it interested me was because in the "American Heritage" magazine, the fall 1952 number, the story of the famous Levi garment is given. Art Roth, the author, tells how a "standard Texan garment became an American institution."

Going back to the Gold Rush of 1849, Levi Strauss, then a 20-year-old, was lured to the mines of California and sailed around Cape Horn arriving at San Francisco in 1850. He carried with him rolls of fabric, all of which he succeeded in selling to fellow passengers, except a roll of tent canvas. As the author tells it: Ashore, however, a friendly miner suggested that "pants don't wear worth a hoot in the diggins. . . . Can't get a pair strong enough to last no time." Strauss took the miner to a local tailor and had a pair of pants made from the canvas. The miner was pleased with 'these pants of Levi's' and the name stuck."

Levi Strauss, so it seemed, was more than a digger of gold from mines, he saw his opportunity and wrote to his brothers back East, to secure all the heavy duck and denim they could possibly secure through their clothing firm. As the orders of the infant Levi Strauss & Company increased, the overland traders with their freight wagon-trains grew to depend upon Strauss more and more for the dry gods and ready-to-wear of their stock in trade. In an amazingly short time, the gold fields were filled with the wearers of Levi's. To this day, over 100 years and 100 millions pairs of Levi's later, the firm uses the same basic pattern in the manufacture of Levi's—snug, low on the hips, tapering in the legs. The only thing Strauss insisted that his denim be dyed indigo blue to assure uniformity in sale, and so came about the "blue jeans." In time to come copper rivets were put in by a local harness maker and the copper-riveted Levi idea have rolled out ever since.

From California the traders, scouts and wagoners wore and advertised the "blue jeans." In a few years Levi's became standard garb for the Texas range folk, and their use spread throughout the entire West. Although Levi Strauss had no children, today most every youngster has, his and her, blue jeans which they wear practically all the time. As time went on Levi Strauss in his trips through the Isthmus in 1853 began to use his funds and influence to press for the completion of a transcontinental railroad.

In time others tried to imitate Levi's but the new brands fell by the wayside. Levi's were built basically upon a tailor-made pant, fashioned and designed by skilled tailors in the beginning and maintained by tailors ever since. The Westerner has sworn by their easy comfortable fit, their rugged construction, and long wearing qualities. So the story of the famous "blue Jean" originated and now has grown popular with the girls as well as the men, all over the world.

Mona Lisa Is Hit Stamp

Frankfurt, Germany (AP) — An Italian masterpiece that is the best known painting in France's Louvre has become West Germany's most popular postage stamp. Last April postal authorities here issued a 20 pfenning stamp bearing an excellent color reproduction of Leonardo Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa." It was a commemorative issue on the 500th anniversary of the Italian master's birth. The new stamp caught on at once with philatelists and already more than a million have been printed. German postal authorities say that collectors throughout the world have written for stamps. England is the biggest customer. There is no limit on the issue and Mona Lisa stamps will be printed according to demand.

Early Christians were often falsely accused of human sacrifices in their religious ceremonies.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

After the joys of Christmas are over we shall come back to earth, but let us hope that we shall not come back with a thud.

The Ruminator has no wish to jar your holiday season with economic conundrums, but this is supposed to be a contrary column having to do with social and business matters; that is, more about the tintinnabulation of money than of bells.

And these days when you speak of money almost the first thing that pops into your mind is the gobs of good U. S. lucre that we have been pouring, and doubtless shall continue to pour, into the coffers of our "allies." (To insert another contrary thought, I don't just know why we think of the other anti-Communist nations as "allies" when in their relations with us they place so much emphasis on what we must do for them. The alliance is altogether too one-sided, obviously. Consider the coming Coronation: What possible excuse can there be for this display of jewels and ermine and expenditure of money when Great Britain persistently points out how close to national bankruptcy she now is; how she needs our aid to avoid bankruptcy?)

The North Atlantic Council (NATO's "executive committee") has been soberly debating in Paris the demands placed upon the various member-nations for western-European defense. They came up, as you have read, with a decisive cut in defense appropriations—a slice that caused Ridgway to go on record with a warning that they cut dangerously deep, that defense will be seriously endangered.

The NATO situation is like Korea, in that it is a dilemma: whichever decision is made (to spend or to cut) may be wrong.

The truth of the matter is, to be contrary to general assumptions, no one can know if the military commitments demanded of the NATO nations are more than they can stand. This is a mighty important question because if NATO can "prove" (but without actual proof, because there isn't any demonstrable proof)—if NATO can prove that the member-nations must cut back, then the next step is to call on Uncle Sam.

This matter coming up at this time is very touchy because the new Administration hasn't been heard from formally as to what its policy will be.

The Ruminator subscribes to two or three "letters" and bulletins published abroad. It is quite an eye-opener to read them these days because they are so full of "America." Commentators write about us, seemingly, more fully than about themselves. Certainly, western Europe has become American-minded while we still have great difficulty in becoming intelligently foreign-minded.

Almost everything you read, from an economic standpoint, swings back toward the United States. We have mentioned above the leaning toward us regarding NATO.

You will find numerous other subjects slanted in our direction.

You will find, for instance, that the foreign economic press (including Canada) plugs constantly (and knowingly, but the latter is "bluff" in my guess) for another devaluation of the dollar (for a sensational increase, that is, in the price of gold). You do not find thinking people over here arguing for dollar-devaluation. (Indeed, the conservative gold-minded economists in this country preach for a return to the free gold standard at the current gold-price of $35 an ounce. This would be conservative; the opposite of hiking the price of gold and remaining on a managed currency basis, which is a radical method of money manipulation.)

Why do the folks abroad want a boost in gold prices? Mainly to ease their money problems with our windfall profit on our present gold holdings. They are only concerned with grinding one side of the axe, obviously; the side that cuts them into our wealth.

Other subjects are tariffs, purchases abroad, and so on. The slogan-of-the-moment is "Trade Not Aid." But you can take a contrary view of this, too, if you wish to. If trade is to be artificially stimulated by our efforts (lowering tariffs, more buying abroad, and similar plans) then someone is going to pay the bill just the same. In one case it is the government (which is to say, you and me) and in another it will be a given group of citizens. Let us always remember "there ain't no such thing as free lunch."

As the Ruminator stated when he commenced this column, it is concerned with socio-economic problems. We have touched particularly on "foreign problems" because there is no doubt whatever that when the holidays are over, and Truman and Acheson have returned to private life, international problems will be in the forefront of national policies. You can perhaps overlook domestic matters, but you will need to look sharp both east and west in 1953.

Secretary Earns More

San Diego, Calif., (AP) — This city has a secretary who gets more pay than her boss. Ruby Schneider, secretary to Mayor John Butler, receives $5,004 a year under her civil service rating. Butler gets only $5,000. The mayor's salary hasn't been changed since it was fixed by city charter in 1932.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I saw recently in The Freeman the advertisement of the Shanty Store, local dealer of "America's finest overall . . . Levi's." Why it interested me was because in the "American Heritage" magazine, the fall 1952 number, the story of the famous Levi garment is given. Art Roth, the author, tells how a "standard Texan garment became an American institution."

Going back to the Gold Rush of 1849, Levi Strauss, then a 20-year-old, was lured to the mines of California and sailed around Cape Horn arriving at San Francisco in 1850. He carried with him rolls of fabric, all of which he succeeded in selling to fellow passengers, except a roll of tent canvas. As the author tells it: Ashore, however, a friendly miner suggested that "pants don't wear worth a hoot in the diggins. . . . Can't get a pair strong enough to last no time." Strauss took the miner to a local tailor and had a pair of pants made from the canvas. The miner was pleased with 'these pants of Levi's' and the name stuck."

Levi Strauss, so it seemed, was more than a digger of gold from mines, he saw his opportunity and wrote to his brothers back East, to secure all the heavy duck and denim they could possibly secure through their clothing firm. As the orders of the infant Levi Strauss & Company increased, the overland traders with their freight wagon-trains grew to depend upon Strauss more and more for the dry gods and ready-to-wear of their stock in trade. In an amazingly short time, the gold fields were filled with the wearers of Levi's. To this day, over 100 years and 100 millions pairs of Levi's later, the firm uses the same basic pattern in the manufacture of Levi's—snug, low on the hips, tapering in the legs. The only thing Strauss insisted that his denim be dyed indigo blue to assure uniformity in sale, and so came about the "blue jeans." In time to come copper rivets were put in by a local harness maker and the copper-riveted Levi idea have rolled out ever since.

From California the traders, scouts and wagoners wore and advertised the "blue jeans." In a few years Levi's became standard garb for the Texas range folk, and their use spread throughout the entire West. Although Levi Strauss had no children, today most every youngster has, his and her, blue jeans which they wear practically all the time. As time went on Levi Strauss in his trips through the Isthmus in 1853 began to use his funds and influence to press for the completion of a transcontinental railroad.

In time others tried to imitate Levi's but the new brands fell by the wayside. Levi's were built basically upon a tailor-made pant, fashioned and designed by skilled tailors in the beginning and maintained by tailors ever since. The Westerner has sworn by their easy comfortable fit, their rugged construction, and long wearing qualities. So the story of the famous "blue Jean" originated and now has grown popular with the girls as well as the men, all over the world.

Christmas Message

Story That Never Grows Old Is Told by Dr. Ralph W. Sockman in Christmas Series

The world approaches Christmas this year by roads of striking contrast: in Korea the dropping of bombs; in America the singing of carols.

In our own great cities the streets are a fairyland of lights; our stores crowded with buyers, and places of amusement filled with merry-makers.

But may there not be a subtle connection between the suffering in certain parts of the world and the spending in our own land? Are the purchasing and pleasure-seeking in America caused by hope or by hopelessness?

Some seem to think the future so uncertain that they seize the satisfactions of the present.

Perhaps next year we may be at war, so let's have a fling while we can. Their theory is to make fun while the sun shines.

The holiday season will be de-Christianized if it is celebrated as a mere festival of gaiety.

Christmas gets its genuine glow only in an atmosphere of trust and confidence. That is why it is so preeminently a family festival. It has to be celebrated among those we trust.

What a hollow thing is Christmas where those around us are out to get something from us. The Christmas spirit can enter only where the participants give themselves to one another in confident comradeship.

If it is to be the divinely good day it was designed to be, Christmas must have a scene of security deeper and stronger than the circle of family or friends.

We are skating on too thin ice when we rely on merely human friendliness to make a holiday of this holy season. Unless we catch the deeper meaning of the manger we shall miss the true source of gladness.

The appeal of the Christmas story is instinctive. Our spirits migrate toward Bethlehem somewhat as birds fly southward at the approach of winter. It is said that when the migrating season comes, even the birds confined within cages feel the strange thrill flutter through their useless wings.

Likewise to us there comes a time when Christmas is in the air and in our hearts. We feel it, even though we cannot analyze it.

The free, imaginative minds of little children take naturally to the story of the shepherds, the manger and the mysterious Magi.

We who are older, caged in our adult conventions, our wings of imagination clipped by the shears of science, our spirits domesticated to the routine of dull facts, even we feel something joyous stir within us as the 25th of December rolls around.

We put away the story books of our childhood. Why can we not lay aside the Christmas story as a lovely legend?

Why has the story of Christ's birth this elemental and enduring appeal? Is it merely a beautiful little nature story of shepherds and animals and a star? Hardly. Is Bethlehem's appeal only the usual fascination of a baby?

Bret Harte once told how the coming of a tiny babe into a roaring miners' camp softened the roughest old desperadoes into tears of tenderness and deeds of kindness.

Is that all there is to Christmas? Hardly.

Does the Bethlehem story still tug at our hearts because of its simple beauty and the pull of its sympathy?

Ah, Christmas is all that and more. When we come back to Bethlehem, we are like refugees returning to our native land. We may have been away from the atmosphere of Bethlehem so long that at first it seems strange to us; but when we ponder the events in our minds, our spirits begin to feel at home.

The tender mother love of Mary, the kindness of the shepherds, the hospitality of the humble — these are the real and genuine things of life.

We prodigals who have been wasting the substance of life in the "far country" of greed and ambition and competition, where men live by the law of the jungle and kill according to the law of nations — when we come back to Bethlehem with its gentle kindness, do we not feel that there is the native air of our souls?

This Christmas Eve multitudes of people will pour out of the atres and night clubs and hasten to churches where they will sing Christmas carols. In doing so they will feel they are getting back where God meant them to be.

Christmas is not a mere dream of loveliness set amid the cruel and stern realities of life. Christmas is the season when God's real values break through the crust of of custom and convention and cruelty.

At Bethlehem we behold the lasting forces which eventually will triumph — beauty, goodness, love.

That is why Christmas is "the story that never grows old."

It is believed that the area now occupied by the Sahara Desert was a fertile region when man first appeared there.

Shopped in Hawaii

The general did most of his Christmas shopping in Hawaii two weeks ago on the way home from Korea.

Eisenhower met for about an hour and a half yesterday with Hoover, the last Republican President to occupy the White House.

The luncheon meeting took place at the East 91st street town house of John Foster Dulles, the secretary of state-designate. It was there that Eisenhower conferred a week ago with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the Korean war and world peace.

After the session with Hoover, the President-elect told newsmen:

"It was just a social gathering at which we had the opportunity to talk over a number of affairs of government, past, present and future."

Asked whether things discussed included reorganization of the executive branch of the government, Eisenhower said they did, and added:

"And many other matters."

Hoover Headed Group

Hoover headed a commission which studied reorganization of the executive branch, under the Truman administration.

Present along with Eisenhower and Hoover were Dulles and Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University and a member of a special committee which Eisenhower recently named to study streamlining of the government.

The President-elect talked to reporters outside Dulles' home while Hoover stood smiling at the general's side. Hoover had no comment.

Eisenhower and Hoover both attended the Republican national convention in Chicago last July, when the general was nominated; but they did not meet then and had not since, until yesterday.

During the convention, the headquarters of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio issued a statement from Hoover saying he favored Taft for the nomination.

After Eisenhower's election, however, Hoover said:

"The majority of our people are giving their faith of solution of our problems into the hands of Gen. Eisenhower and his friends. I am sure the whole American people pray the Almighty for his success in the great task now before him."

Frank White, director of the Children's Home on East Chester street, also expressed thanks to the "many friends" in the vicinity who are helping individually or in groups to bring a Merry Christmas to the youngsters there. May Study Korea Bonus by State

A bonus would require a constitutional amendment. If approved by the 1953 Legislature, it could not go into operation before 1955. It would need the approval of a second Legislature and the voters.

A 400 million dollar bonus program for veterans of World War 2 went into effect in 1948. Most of it has been paid. The state estimates that about 30,000 New Yorkers have been discharged after Korean service. They are coming home at the rate of about 5,000 a month.

Everything new . . . that comes along . . .

Gives people more to read about . . .

In their Daily Newspaper!

When the bicycle was invented, some folks said it would take people away from the newspaper.

They said the same thing about the flivver, and radio. And now television.

But no. Everything new that comes along just makes the newspaper more important to people.

That's why people are buying more newspapers today than at any time in history.

So, if you sell anything for a living, make sure it's advertised where your customers have a chance to see it . . . in the newspaper.

The county safety president concluded "safety is a good resolution for every day of the year. Don't let this resolution end up as so many do too easily and too soon broken. Let's make every day a holiday from accidents."

Many Visits Scheduled

There has been a marked increase in recent years in the number of civic and church organizations which visit the various hospitals and institutions to sing carols, distribute favors or gifts and otherwise spread Christmas cheer.

Commissioner Edward Murray of the Ulster County Department of Welfare was one of those who expressed his appreciation for this trend, insofar as it affects residents at the county home. He listed church groups from Gardiner and New Paltz, 4-H Clubs from Kyserike and Kingston, and a Red Cross students' group from New Paltz Teachers College and others among those who have already visited the home this season.

Frank White, director of the Children's Home on East Chester street, also expressed thanks to the "many friends" in the vicinity who are helping individually or in groups to bring a Merry Christmas to the youngsters there. Activities already past include a trip to Dutchess County Airport on Dec. 13 to greet "Santa Claus from North Pole," who had gifts to distribute, and the party Sunday, Dec. 21, sponsored by the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

On Friday evening, the children will be entertained by a choral group from St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers. The American Legion Post's annual party for the youngsters has been scheduled for Jan. 3.

White has issued an invitation to all to drive past or stop in to the Children's Home during the holiday season to see the new holiday decorations.

Everything new . . . that comes along . . .

Gives people more to read about . . .

In their Daily Newspaper!

When the bicycle was invented, some folks said it would take people away from the newspaper.

They said the same thing about the flivver, and radio. And now television.

But no. Everything new that comes along just makes the newspaper more important to people.

That's why people are buying more newspapers today than at any time in history.

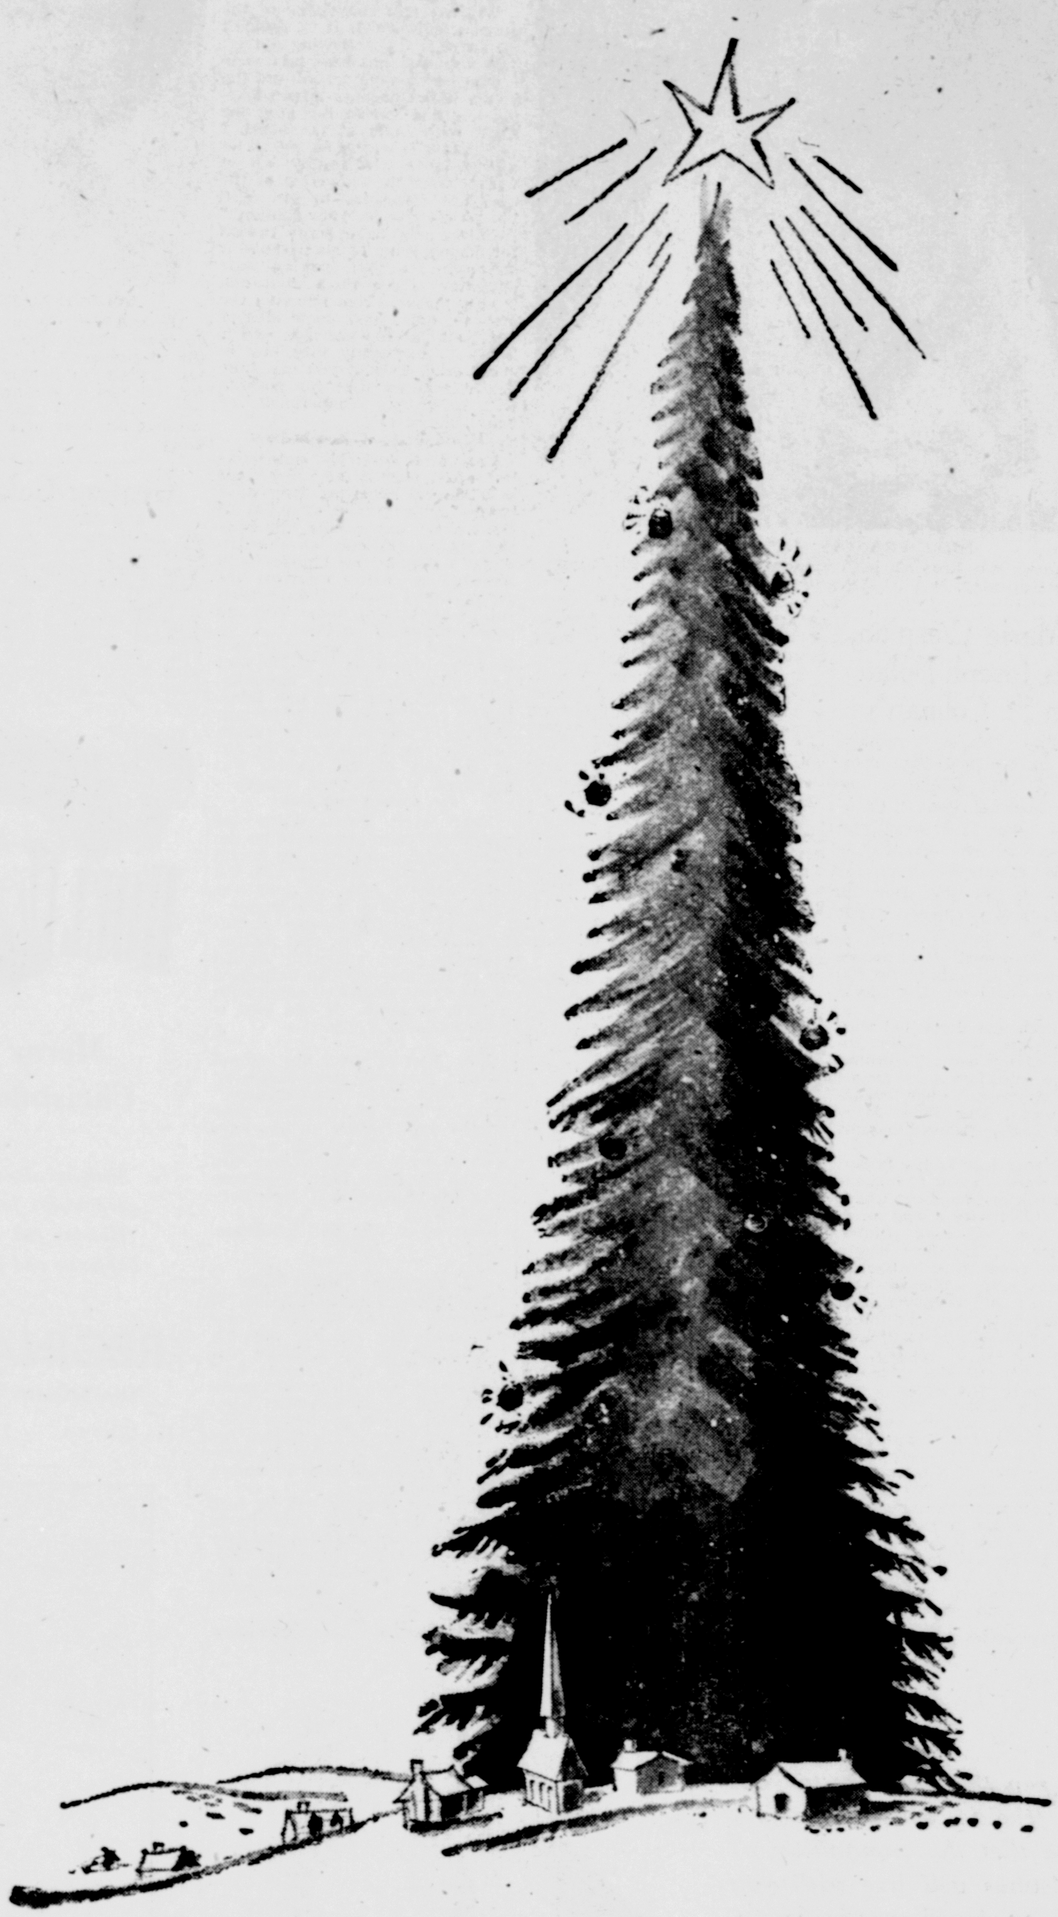

So, if you sell anything for a living, make sure it's advertised where your customers have a chance to see it . . . in the newspaper.

Becomes Army Man's Bride

MRS. FRANCIS J. DOLAN

The former Miss Rose Marie Crespino was married in St. Colman's Church on Saturday, Dec. 20. (Pennington photo)

Rose Marie Crespino, Francis Joseph Dolan Wed in St. Colman's

Miss Rose Marie Crespino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crespino of East Kingston, became the bride of Private Francis Joseph Dolan, U. S. Army, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Dolan, 58 Elizabeth street, at 1:30 p. m. on Saturday, Dec. 20, in St. Colman's Church, East Kingston. The Rev. Edmond V. Radford performed the double ring ceremony. A reception for 100 guests was held at the Hotel Stuyvesant.

The church was decorated with white pompons. White satin ribbons marked the pews. Traditional wedding selections were played by Miss Margaret Volker, organist. As soloist, Mrs. Peter Mancuso sang Mother Beloved and the Ave Maria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Italian silk and hand-cut Chantilly lace, styled with a long torso, yoke of lace and long pointed sleeves. Her bouffant, floor length skirt terminated in a cathedral train, edged with scalloped lace. A bridal cap of rosepoint lace, pearl trimmed, secured her three-quarter length French illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of white poinsettias, long needled pine, and holly in streamers.

Mrs. Joseph Misasi, 208 Down street, was her sister's matron-of-honor. The junior bridesmaids, nieces of the bride, were Miss Erma Francello of Glasco, and Miss Theresa Misasi, 208 Downs street. The honor attendant wore a gown of garnet velveteen and nylon net, styled with a molded strapless bodice and bouffant floor length skirt with a side pouf. A matching velveteen jacket and headband of coque feathers, with an afternoon veil, and a bouquet of long needled pine and holly, completed her ensemble.

The junior bridesmaids were attired in Kate Greenaway frocks of emerald green taffeta faille and nylon net, fashioned with bustles and full floor length skirts. They wore crowns of flowers and carried red poinsettias, pine and holly leaf.

Bernard A. Feeney, Jr., 622 Delaware avenue, was best man. Serving as ushers were Charles Crespino, brother to the bride; and John Heitzman, the bridegroom's brother-in-law.

A nephew of the bride, Fred Francello of Glasco, was the ringbearer.

The couple left for a wedding trip to New York city and New Jersey. They will make their future home in East Kingston. For traveling, the bride chose a purple faille dress and a violet corsage.

Mrs. Dolan was graduated from Kingston High School. Private Dolan also was graduated from Kingston High School and from Siena College, class of '52. He is serving with the U. S. Army, stationed at Fort Dix, N. J.

MOTHER WOULD SEEM TO BE OVEREXACTING

Without any knowledge of the persons concerned, it is difficult to answer the following letter: "My daughter has been invited to a dance at a prep school and the young host's parents intend driving her and having her stay the night with them at the hotel. I feel that it is wrong for me to let her go with this family, all of whom, with the exception of the boy, are strangers to me. Will you please give me your opinion?"

Unless you have some reason for disapproving of his parents, it seems to me that making your daughter refuse their invitation is very unfair. From knowing the boy you must have some idea of what his parents are like, and if he is a thoroughly nice boy in every way, I think you can take it for granted that his parents will be proper chaperones for your daughter.

Misunderstood Son-in-Law

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother-in-law died recently and was kept at a funeral home for three days before being buried. I went to work every day during this time and stayed out only on the day of the funeral. Now I understand some of my wife's relatives are saying that I was very disrespectful for not staying home. Will you please comment on this?

Answer: If you are your own boss, or if you have a job that you could leave with impunity, that would have been one thing. But if your work was important and there was no one to substitute for you, I think staying out on the day of the funeral was sufficient to show your respect.

Ice Cream and Cake

Dear Mrs. Post: When ice cream and cake are served on the same plate, should the ice cream be eaten with a spoon and the cake with a fork, or may the cake be taken up in the fingers.

Answer: One implement is sufficient for both. For that matter, ordinary cake is usually picked up in the fingers. The only kind of cake that should be eaten with a fork, or spoon, is one that is both soft and sticky.

Farmers 50 Years Ahead

Manila (AP)—A Filipino Department of Agriculture expert says Japan is making unprecedented improvements in agriculture and is 50 years ahead of the Philippines in developing agricultural and fishing techniques. Jose M. Trinidad, chief of the department's technical division, says "it would take at least three or four Filipino farmers to equal the productive capacity of one Japanese farmer." He attributed this to Japan's more favorable climate, crop rotation, seed selection and a far greater use of fertilizers.

New Zealand Is First To Celebrate Christmas

Wellington, New Zealand, Thursday, Dec. 25 (AP)—This is the place for a small boy to live on Christmas morning. For Christmas arrives early in these parts—17 hours ahead of the eastern seaboard of the United States, 18 hours ahead of St. Louis, 19 hours ahead of Denver and 20 hours ahead of Los Angeles.

The sun does it—the sun and that scientist's invention called the International Date Line. Old Sol crosses the dateline in the Pacific, and already it's tomorrow out here while it's yesterday back in the United States.

So while children in the United States are hanging up their stockings, kids here are taking them down.

The tiny Maori settlements of the East Cape of New Zealand's North Island are among the first civilized places in the world to celebrate Christmas Day. And in their grass-covered shacks, the Maori children — chubby little brown descendants of the islands' first aboriginal dwellers—have the same ideas about Christmas as the youngster in London, the Bronx or California.

27 Below at North Pole

The North Pole, Dec. 24 (AP)—It was at least 27 degrees below zero here today as Santa Claus hitched up his reindeer for his annual visit to the homes of good girls and boys. The weather was partly cloudy but visibility was good for the beginning of St. Nick's world-circling trip.

In ancient times and during the Middle Ages, even reputable authorities often confured Ethiopia with India.

New Zealand Is First To Celebrate Christmas

Wellington, New Zealand, Thursday, Dec. 25 (AP)—This is the place for a small boy to live on Christmas morning. For Christmas arrives early in these parts—17 hours ahead of the eastern seaboard of the United States, 18 hours ahead of St. Louis, 19 hours ahead of Denver and 20 hours ahead of Los Angeles.

The sun does it—the sun and that scientist's invention called the International Date Line. Old Sol crosses the dateline in the Pacific, and already it's tomorrow out here while it's yesterday back in the United States.

So while children in the United States are hanging up their stockings, kids here are taking them down.

The tiny Maori settlements of the East Cape of New Zealand's North Island are among the first civilized places in the world to celebrate Christmas Day. And in their grass-covered shacks, the Maori children — chubby little brown descendants of the islands' first aboriginal dwellers—have the same ideas about Christmas as the youngster in London, the Bronx or California.

The North Pole, Dec. 24 (AP)—It was at least 27 degrees below zero here today as Santa Claus hitched up his reindeer for his annual visit to the homes of good girls and boys. The weather was partly cloudy but visibility was good for the beginning of St. Nick's world-circling trip.

In ancient times and during the Middle Ages, even reputable authorities often confured Ethiopia with India.

Farm Wildlike Needs Feed

Coldwater, O., (AP)—The farm equipment division of the Avco Manufacturing Co. has been asking its customers to "cut corners" because its farm machinery makes it tough for wildlife to exist. A company mailing piece says that the modern corn picker, which scarely misses an ear or kernel, laves slim pickings for birds and animals. The company suggests hat farmers cut diagonally acros the back corner of each fiel when harvesting to leave a natural shelter and a little store of fed for wildlife.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Finley, former residents, now of Poughkeepsie, left recently to spend the holidays with their daughter and family Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lucas in Stillwater, Okla.

The decorations in the Presbyterian Church Sunday were beautiful and in keeping with the season. The two large trees with golden balls, hemlock branches with red ribbons and two large poinsettia plants, one in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alphonso Coons, were given by the Sunday school and by Mrs. Walter Clark.

The white chrysanthemums were in loving memory of Aviation Cadet William Donovan given by his father J. J. Donovan. The flowers were later sent to members of the congregation in the Jennings Nursing Home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yates, son and daughter drove to Pittsfield, Mass., Sunday to visit the latter's parents. They remained over night.

Henry Clay, who was defeated for President three times, said: "I would rather be right than be President."

Our wish is that this Christmas will once again bring joy and peace on on earth to all.

Spellman Brings Hope and $10,000 On Korean Visit

Seoul, Dec. 24 (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman told more than 3,000 applauding Koreans today "my own America, the United Nations and the Republic of Korea are working together for the peace of the world."

The archbishop of New York, who arrived last night to spend his second consecutive Christmas with allied troops, spoke at the war-battered capital grounds. He was accompanied by South Korean President Syngman Rhee, Gen. and Mrs. James A. Van Fleet and Col. J. T. Kilcoyne of San Francisco, Eighth Army chaplain.

Earlier today, Spellman celebrated Mass at Van Fleet's U. S. 8th Army Headquarters, chatted with wounded soldiers in two hospitals and had lunch with President and Mrs. Rhee.

Check for Needy

At the capital ceremony, Rhee introduced Spellman as "a great friend of Korea who has great sympathy for the Korean people." Rhee added that the cardinal had brought a $10,000 check "as a personal gift to the needy people of Korea."

Spellman told the crowd "the whole world" admires the brave soldiers fighting in Korea. He received wreaths of flowers from Korean organizations.

He celebrated Mass at 7:30 a. m. at Eighth Army Headquarters. Then he told the congregation of 160 ranging from privates to colonels:

"I came to Korea to do as much as I could to bring Christmas to you.

"You represent everything that America holds dear.

"You have not only the obligation to defend your country, but also the obligation to serve your own immortal soul. Remember our motto, the motto of the American soldier, 'For God and Country.'"

The Cardinal gave Holy Communion to 46, including two Koreans.

Talks to Wounded

After a quick breakfast, Spellman drove to the 121st Evacuation Hospital with Kilcoyne. The cardinal walked from bed to bed, speaking softly to the wounded soldiers. He knelt briefly in prayer in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel of the hospital. The patients included Americans, Belgians, French and one Ethiopian.

Spellman next visited a mobile army surgical hospital where patients are treated for hemorrhagic fever and injuries from Korea's bitter cold.

munist party, and I have sworn to this fact.

"Budenz is described in today's papers as a professional ex-Communist. Earlier statements made by him have caused me to suspect that he is a liar.

"Now I know that he is a liar—a professional liar.

"It is disgraceful," Pauling continued, "that a committee of the United States Congress should permit and even aid such a scurvy, unconscionable person to cause trouble for respectable people.

"If Budenz is not prosecuted for perjury, we must conclude that our courts and congressional committees are not interested in learning and disclosing the truth."

Member of Board

Pauling is a member of the board which chooses those who receive fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation. Officials of the foundation in New York noted that he has sworn he is not and never has been a Communist.

Budenz also described as a Communist Dr. Walter Gellhorn of Columbia University, who issued a statement saying:

"If Budenz said that I have ever been a Communist, his statement is absolutely and unqualifiedly false. I am not and never have been a Communist of any description whatsoeveer."

Budenz's testimony also involved persons receiving help or connected with the Rosenwald fund, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Marshall Field Foundation, the Russell Sage Foundation, the Rosenberg Foundation of California, and American Peoples Fund, sponsored by Frederick Vanderbilt Field.

Budenz testified he had met many times "as a Communist" with Frederick Vanderbilt Field.

Denies Knowing Field

In New York, Maxwell Hann, executive vice-president of the Field Foundation, said its president, Marshall Field, has never met Frederick Vanderbilt Field and "so far as I know, no one connected with the foundation has."

Budenz said Mary Van Kleek, whom he named as a Communist, had been an official of the Russell Sage Foundation. Dr. Donald Young, general director of the foundation, said in New York she had been employed by the foundation from 1911 until 1948 but as a research worker, not a policy making official.

Gellhorn is a native of St. Louis and lives at 186 E. Palisade avenue, Englewood, N. J. Hahn, a native of Kokomo, Ind., lives at 8 Park End Place, Forest Hills, N. Y. Young, who was born in Macungie, Pa., now resides at 1165 Fifth avenue, New York.

Budenz also named John Fairbank, whom he identified as a writer on Far Eastern affairs. Committee officials said Fairbank is a Harvard professor. At his home in Boston, an inquirer was told he is in Japan and will be away for a year.

After hearing Budenz's testimony that the Kremlin deliberately sought to capture American educational and philanthropic foundations, the House group recessed its hearings indefinitely.

led to the torture of men. And he recommended that capitalism should do more to solve the world's unemployment problem, including government public work where private enterprise is inadequate.

It was the Pope's first of two broadcasts today. The Vatican radio also will air his celebration of Christmas Eve Mass, beginning at 5:40 p. m., EST.

Truman's Last Yule Message

More than an hour earlier Truman will deliver his last official Christmas message to the nation. He will speak at 4:30 p. m., at the 30th annual lighting of the living Christmas tree on the White House grounds.

Other chiefs of state and rulers prepared special messages. Queen Elizabeth II will broadcast hers—her first as Britain's reigning monarch—to the worldwide British Commonwealth and Empire at 10:03 A. M., EST tomorrow.

As Americans at home rushed their last preparations for the season, their thoughts went out to the thousands of fighting men spending Christmas in troubled spots around the world—Korea, Germany, Austria, Japan and other lands threatened by tyranny.

Troops Fete Kiddies

All these, however, will have their celebrations, too. There will be packages from home and special Christmas dinners. And American troops the world over have chipped in to buy toys and food for needy children in lands that are their temporary homes.

In a Christmas message to his Eighth Army troops in war-ravaged Korea, Gen. James Van Fleet declared the Christmas star "still burns to lead us in our pursuit of peace on earth and good will towards men."

The Eighth Army chief echoed a wellnigh universal hope in the western world when he told his men he hoped that the next Christmas would find them in their homes and peace restored to Korea.

Van Fleet's words were echoed by his commander, Gen. Mark W. Clark, whose message to the United Nations' troops said the faith expressed in the Christmas spirit "will bring us to our goal."

Fellowship to Triumph

"Although the world has passed through many dark and critical times these past two thousand years, it is man's belief, however, dark the hour may seem, that eventually the light of fellowship will show the way of peace on earth," Clark declared.

The Chinese Communists even joined in the Yuletide festivities on the Korean battlefront. A Red patrol decorated a Christmas tree on the snow-covered no-man's land between allied and Red lines. Some of the crudely written banners on the tree wished allied soldiers a Merry Christmas but others added a wish for the "cold death" of allied troops if the United Nations command did not give in at the suspended armistice talks.

On Formosa, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek will lead free China's Christians in observing Christmas, his fourth in Taipeh since fleeing the mainland. Madame Chiang is in the U. S. undergoing treatment for a skin disease.

Not too much is known about Christmas plans in Communist countries. In Russia, Christmas is celebrated on the west's Jan. 7 because the Russians use a different calendar.

Reds Press Poland

In Russian-led, but still Roman Catholic Poland the Communists evidently are trying to discourage traditional celebrations. The authorities are sponsoring, as a counter attraction in New Year's Day Festivities with lighted trees. They also are attempting to replace Father Christmas—as Santa is known in Poland—with the Russian "Grandfather Frost." This worthy distributes presents on Jan. 1.

But Christmas brought a gesture of friendship between the halves of divided Germany. The West German Federal Government, joined by State Governments, churches and charitable organizations, called on all citizens to send Christmas parcels to the Red-ruled Russian zone, whether they have relatives there or not.

"Give," the Western Government urged, "because the people of the Russian zone are really suffering hunger, no matter what the Communist propogandist claims."

The league of west side organizations, a civic group, last night attributed the bombing to group intolerance. The league said in a statement:

"x x x in this infamy we are all paying the price for the apathy and indifference of a city too busy with its petty problems to detect the cancer growing within it."

The statement was signed by Canon Darby W. Betts of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopalian) and Rabbi Edward E. Klein of the Free Synagogue, and others.

Sutter and Shanahan were charged with arson and felonious assault in the bombing of the tavern, located in an area largely inhabited by Puerto Ricans.

Colonial Gardens Project Has Christmas Party

Among those attending an informal party Tuesday afternoon at the Colonial Gardens housing project now under construction on Flatbush avenue were, left to right, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Stewart M. Muller, general contractor, Arthur A. Davis, Jr., chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority, and George E. Yerry, Jr., vicechairman of the local authority. Many public officials, both city and county, attended the get-together, sponsored by the contractors for the 98-unit low-rent apartment project. (Freeman photo)

200 Applications Made for Colonial Garden Dwellings

Approximately 200 applications have been received by the Kingston Housing Authority for apartments in the 98-unit Colonial Gardens housing project now under construction on Flatbush avenue, it was announced today by Arthur A. Davis, Jr., authority chairman.

Most of these applications are from veterans, Davis said, pointing out that veterans would be given preference as required by law. First preference, he said, will go to eligible veterans now occupying temporary facilities in the Charlotte Place project.

Davis said that practically all exterior work except the hanging of doors and the finishing of apartment entrances, had been completed and that work on some apartments would be completed by February. "Occupancy will be in the early spring, we hope," Davis said.

He pointed out that plans and specifications for landscaping the premises were now being prepared and that the contract would be let during the latter part of January.

City Residence Required

Since the project is primarily for the benefit of residents of the city of Kingston, Davis stated, the authority has adopted a rule requiring two years residence in the city before eligibility is established.

The administration building is now nearing completion, including in its facilities a recreation room and kitchen for use by residents in holding meetings and social gatherings.

Davis pointed out that a refrigerator, range, water, light and heat was included in the rent.

"There have been rumors that occupancy has started," Davis stated, "but no one is yet living in the project. Final processing of applications will not commence until about January."

Davis said that anyone wishing to apply could obtain application forms at the Kingston Housing Authority office in the city hall. Forms may also be requested by mail or by telephoning 4856. Davis suggested the advisability of using the mails or telephoning, pointing out that the project manager, whose office is at the city hall, is often at the construction site and might not be in the authority office when the applicant paid his visit.

The project is being built by the Kingston Housing Authority with funds obtained from the New York State Division of Housing as a loan. The loan will be repaid over a 50-year period from rents received.

Apartments Have Low Rentals

Work on the project commenced February 4, 1952, and the scheduled completion date is February, 1953. Davis pointed out, however, that during the early part of the construction period inclement weather intervened causing a loss of 30 or 40 work days which must be added to the scheduled date of completion.

The apartment units ranging in size from three and a half to five and a half rooms will be rented in a scale from $35 to $45 a month. Maximum income permitted for initial occupancy by veterans with less than three dependents is $2,940, ranging upward to $4,320 for veterans with three or more dependents. Maximum income permitted for initial occupancy for non-veterans with less than three dependents is $2,100, ranging upward to $3,240 for those with three or more dependents. The average rent per dwelling unit per month is $42.13.

"Justice this long delayed is not justice," he declared.

"There have been indications that certain of the seamen's unions are dominated by Communist elements.

"A thorough investiation is, of course, being made into these allegations or statements.

"Our inspector Martin has thoroughly questioned all the seamen (on the Liberte. While a considerable number of them are members of the CGT (a French Seamen's Union), on the occasion of this arrival they have been given shore leave.

"This has been due because they have stated under oath that they are not members of the Communist party or affiliated with any Communist organization, that they do not consider their union is a Communist affiliate and that they are not sympathetic to the Communist cause."

Colonial Gardens Project Has Christmas Party

Among those attending an informal party Tuesday afternoon at the Colonial Gardens housing project now under construction on Flatbush avenue were, left to right, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Stewart M. Muller, general contractor, Arthur A. Davis, Jr., chairman of the Kingston Hosing Authority, and George E. Yerry, Jr., vicechairman of the local authority. Many public officials, both city and county, attended the get-together, sponsored by the contractors for the 98-uni low-rent apartment project. (Freeman photo)

200 Applications Made for Colonial Garden Dwellings

Approximately 200 applications have been received by the Kingston Housing Authority for apartments in the 98-unit Colonial Gardens housing project now under construction on Flatbush avenue, it was announced today by Arthur A. Davis, Jr., authority chairman.

Most of these applications are from veterans, Davis said, pointing out that veterans would be given preference as required by law. First preference, he said, will go to eligible veterans now occupying temporary facilities in the Charlotte Place project.

Davis said that practically all exterior work except the hanging of doors and the finishing of apartment entrances, had been completed and that work on some apartments would be completed by February. "Occupancy will be in the early spring, we hope," Davis said.

He pointed out that plans and specifications for landscaping the premises were now being prepared and that the contract would be let during the latter part of January.

City Residence Required

Since the project is primarily for the benefit of residents of the city of Kingston, Davis stated, the authority has adopted a rule requiring two years residence in the city before eligibility is established.

The administration building is now nearing completion, including in its facilities a recreation room and kitchen for use by residents in holding meetings and social gatherings.

Davis pointed out that a refrigerator, range, water, light and heat was included in the rent.

"There have been rumors that occupancy has started," Davis stated, "but no one is yet living in the project. Final processing of applications will not commence until about January."

Davis said that anyone wishing to apply could obtain application forms at the Kingston Housing Authority office in the city hall. Forms may also be requested by mail or by telephoning 4856. Davis suggested the advisability of using the mails or telephoning, pointing out that the project manager, whose office is at the city hall, is often at the construction site and might not be in the authority office when the applicant paid his visit.

The project is being built by the Kingston Housing Authority with funds obtained from the New York State Division of Housing as a loan. The loan will be repaid over a 50-year period from rents received.

Apartments Have Low Rentals

Work on the project commenced February 4, 1952, and the scheduled completion date is February, 1953. Davis pointed out, however, that during the early part of the construction period inclement weather intervened causing a loss of 30 or 40 work days which must be added to the scheduled date of completion.

The apartment units ranging in size from three and a half to five and a half rooms will be rented in a scale from $35 to $45 a month. Maximum income permitted for initial occupancy by veterans with less than three dependents is $2,940, ranging upward to $4,320 for veterans with three or more dependents. Maximum income permitted for initial occupancy for nonveterans with less than three dependents is $2,100, ranging upward to $3,240 for those with three or more dependents. The average rent per dwelling unit per month is $42.13.

Dewey May Order

revoted by the 1955 or 1956 Legislature and be approved by the electorate.

Dewey also pointed to present lengthy delays in getting a case to trial in many courts.

It takes four years, he said, to get a negligence suit to trial in New York city.

"Justice this long delayed is not justice," he declared.

men refused "to go into certain union matters and only would give identifying answers."

Reds Run Unions

Shaughnessy told the news reporters:

"There have been indications that certain of the seamen's unions are dominated by Communist elements.

"A thorough investigation is, of course, being made into these allegations or statements.

"Our inspector Martin has thoroughly questioned all the seamen (on the Liberte. While a considerable number of them are members of the CGT (a French Seamen's Union), on the occasion of this arrival they have been given shore leave.

"This has been due because they have stated under oath that they are not members of the Communist party or affiliated with any Communist organization, that they do not consider their union is a Communist affiliate and that they are not sympathetic to the Communist cause."

Wiltwyck to Reveal 1953 Plans Monday

Report Will Show 9 Holes Available

Plans for revamping the Wiltwyck Golf Club layout to a playable nine-hole course in 1953 will be outlined to members and stockholders at a meeting on Monday, Dec. 29, at the Hotel Stuyvesant.

Arthur A. Davis, club president, and Dr. Fred W. Holcomb, Jr., chairman of the 1953 committee, today issued a joint statement that Wiltwyck members can expect to have a 9-hole course next season.

The meeting is designed to bring the members up to date on the work already completed by the committee for 1953 and to discuss golf activities next year at the Hurley avenue links.

Map Available

A map of the proposed new proposed course will be available for inspection by members. Other matters pertaining to the future plans of the course will be aired by the members. Davis has urged a large attendance.

The Thruway will slice the eastern half of the course off the present layout—holes No. 4, 5, 6 and 7—early in the spring. The revised course will be built around the holes on the west side of the ridge that divides Wiltwyck.

Although no detailed plans have been made public, it is believed that the use of alternate tees on the remaining holes and the clearing of areas around the present No. 8 green will enable Wiltwyck to come up with a practical 9-holer next season.

O'Brien Needs One Point For Record

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—The next point the amazing Johnny O'Brien scores for the Seattle University basketball team will give him a new four-year record for college basketball.

The point-scoring prodigy, the first collegian to top the 1,000 mark in one season, contributed 29 points to Seattle's 102-101 victory over New York University last night and now is tied with Nate DeLong, who scored 2,592 points for River Falls, Wis., State Teachers College. From there it's only a short hop for the agile O'Brien to the career record of 2,902 set by DeLong in five years. He made 1,051 last year and has 206 thus far this year.

Minnesota Stops 2nd Rated Illini; NCS Is Upset

Minneapolis, Dec. 24 (AP)—Illinois' prestige as the nation's second ranking collegiate team in the Associated Press basketball poll dipped last night. The Illini absorbed a 77-73 defeat at the hands of Minnesota before 16,878 fans.

The victory was a tribute to Coach Ozzie Cowles' inspired Minnesota charges who turned the trick by out-rebounding the taller Illini and by skillfully executing ingenious defenses set to check the Illini near the basket.

There were other surprises, but none as unexpected as the Illini defeat. St. John of Brooklyn tumbled North Carolina State, ranked 6th, 67-56; Wayne of Michigan whipped Duquesne, 71-59, to win the Motor City Classic; Drake humbled Missouri, 77-57, and Seattle took NYU, 102-101.

Minnesota held Illnois' 6-9 center, John Kerr, to 5 points and he was forced to score one of his two field goals from the outside. Kerr previously had a 21.3 average per game for three contests.

In addition the Gophers were able to do a generally effective job of guarding the visitors without having many fouls called on them.

After trailing 15-14 at the end of the first quarter Minnesota built up a 36-31 halftime advantage. Midway through the third period Minnesota stretched its lead to 49-36 before the Illinois substitutes made their all-out bid. With less than three minutes left Illini forward Max Hooper connected on his fourth straight field goal attempt to put the visitors back in the lead, 69-68.

Center Ed Kalafat of the Gophers got a bucket and a free throw and reserve forward Earl Johnson made it 75-69 with a field goal to settle the issue.

Fourth For Gophers

The victory was Minnesota's fourth straight without a defeat, three of them against non-conference competition.

Mencel took over the Big Ten all-game scoring lead with a total of 77 points as a result of his 18 point production. He now has a 19.2 average for four games. Minnesota (1-0) and Indiana (2-0) are leading the Big Ten at the moment while Illinois has split two conference starts.

Johnny O'Brien tossed in 29 points for Seattle against NYU to tie the collegiate four-year individual scoring mark of 2,592 points. Still, he took second place to his brother, Eddie, who flipped in 33 points.

A turnout of 12,752 Madison Square Garden fans in New York then saw St. John's upend N. C. State.

John Kline's 20 points sparked Wayne to its victory over Duquesne in a tussle between two unbeaten teams. Missouri went down before Drake principally because of Jim Thomas' 30 points.

In other leading games West Virginia took South Carolina, 86-73; Columbia downed Georgia, 61-51; St. Mary's of California whipped Detroit, 81-78; Wyoming edged Oregon, 56-54; Rice walloped Stephen F. Austin, 87-66; Stanford fell before the San Francisco Olympic Club, 93-75, and Utah State took a 71-69 beating from Eastern Washington.

The victory was a tribute to Coach Ozzie Cowles' inspired Minnesota charges who turned the trick by out-rebounding the taller Illini and by skillfully executing ingenious defenses set to check the Illini near the basket.

There were other surprises, but none as unexpected as the Illini defeat. St. John of Brooklyn tumbled North Carolina State, ranked 6th, 67-56; Wayne of Michigan whipped Duquesne, 71-59, to win the Motor City Classic; Drake humbled Missouri, 77-57, and Seattle took NYU, 102-101.

Minnesota held Illnois' 6-9 center, John Kerr, to 5 points and he was forced to score one of his two field goals from the outside. Kerr previously had a 21.3 average per game for three contests.

In addition the Gophers were able to do a generally effective job of guarding the visitors without having many fouls called on them.

After trailing 15-14 at the end of the first quarter Minnesota built up a 36-31 halftime advantage. Midway through the third period Minnesota stretched its lead to 49-36 before the Illinois substitutes made their all-out bid. With less than three minutes left Illini forward Max Hooper connected on his fourth straight field goal attempt to put the visitors back in the lead, 69-68.

Center Ed Kalafat of the Gophers got a bucket and a free throw and reserve forward Earl Johnson made it 75-69 with a field goal to settle the issue.

Fourth For Gophers

The victory was Minnesota's fourth straight without a defeat, three of them against non-conference competition.

Mencel took over the Big Ten all-game scoring lead with a total of 77 points as a result of his 18 point production. He now has a 19.2 average for four games. Minnesota (1-0) and Indiana (2-0) are leading the Big Ten at the moment while Illinois has split two conference starts.

Johnny O'Brien tossed in 29 points for Seattle against NYU to tie the collegiate four-year individual scoring mark of 2,592 points. Still, he took second place to his brother, Eddie, who flipped in 33 points.

A turnout of 12,752 Madison Square Garden fans in New York then saw St. John's upend N. C. State.

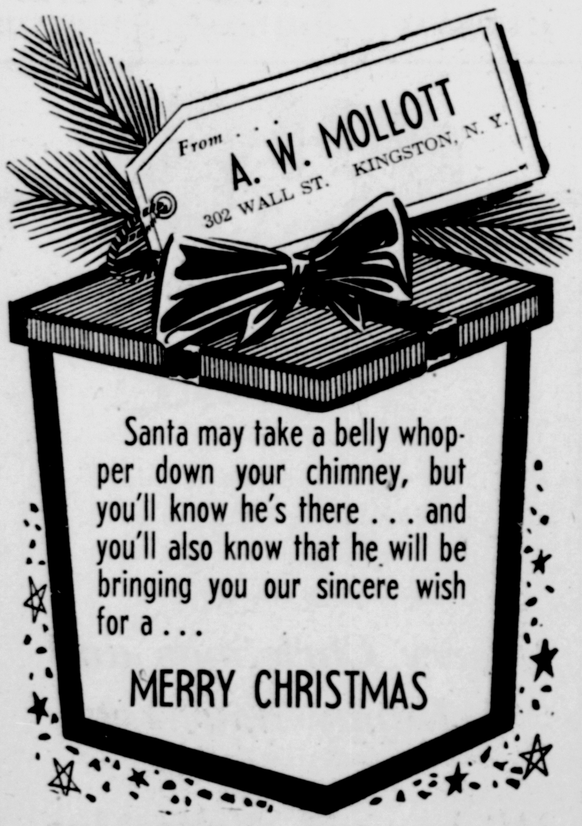

John Kline's 20 points sparked Wayne to its victory over Duquesne in a tussle between two unbeaten teams. Missouri went down before Drake principally because of Jim Thomas' 30 points.

In other leading games West Virginia took South Carolina, 86-73; Columbia downed Georgia, 61-51; St. Mary's of California whipped Detroit, 81-78; Wyoming edged Oregon, 56-54; Rice walloped Stephen F. Austin, 87-66; Stanford fell before the San Francisco Olympic Club, 93-75, and Utah State took a 71-69 beating from Eastern Washington.

Report Chandler Gets Coast League Bid; Seeks Five-Year Pact With Frisco Seals

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—There is a chance that A. B. 'Happy Chandler may get back into organized baseball—as managing director of the San Francisco Club of the Pacific Coast League. Negotiations between Paul Fagan, owner of the Seals, and the former baseball commissioner have been resumed after having been broken off two weeks ago.

At that time, Fagin had offered Chandler $25,000 a year to take charge of the Seals, with Fagan retaining ownership. Chandler was willing to accept the post, but asked for a five-year contract instead of the two-year pact offered by Fagan. Happy argued it would require that much time to rebuild the club.

Batting and pitching champions of the six top minor leagues will receive a major league trial next season. The Pacific Coast League sends first baseman Bob Boyd, who hit .320 at Seattle, to the Chicago White Sox and Johnny Lindell, who had a 24-9 record with Hollywood to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The International League graduates outfielder Frank Carswell, a .344 hitter at Buffalo, to Detroit and Bob Keegan of Syracuse, its only 20-game winner, to the White Sox.

The American Association offers outfielder Dave Pope, a .352 hitter at Indianapolis, to Cleveland and Eddie Erautt, who won 21 and lost five for Kansas City, to Cincinnati.

The Texas League advances first baseman Frank Dunlap (.336) from Shreveport to the St. Louis Cardinals and Dave Hoskins (22-10), Dallas righthander, to Cleveland.

The Southern Association moves up third basemen Rance Pless (.364) from Nashville to the New York Giants and southpaw Al Sima (24-9) from Chattanooga to Washington.

The Eastern League offers outfielder Mike Lutz (.321) from Reading to Cleveland and George Uhaze, Albany's 18-game winner, to the Boston Red Sox.

The father of Kal Segrist, New York Yankee rookie, recently told members of the Federated Baseball Players Association at the annual dinner in Forth Worth, Tex., that his son received more money for signing a bonus contract with the Yankees than he made during his entire professional baseball career. Kal, Sr., who went as high as triple A but never could quite make the majors, was active for more than a dozen years. Kal, Jr., received a reported $50,000 from the Yankees after graduating from Texas U., two years ago.

Warren Mehrtens, who rode Assault to a Triple Crown victory, has been appointed a Hialeah patrol judge this winter.

Connie Mack, grand old man of baseball and former head of the Philadelphia Athletics, blows out candles on his 90th birthday cake at the home of his son, Fort Myers, Fla. With him, watching the ceremony, is his grandson, Michael McGillicuddy, age 9.

Brown Unimpressed By Digs From Detroit On 'Rustiness'

Cleveland, Dec. 23 (AP)—Coach Paul Brown had a terse "no comment" today to a long range dig at him from Detroit by Lions coach Buddy Parker.

Brown, said Parker, is trying to make his Cleveland Browns "underdogs" for Sunday's pro football championship game with the Lions by inferring the Browns are in poor shape.

Parker also said that Brown was "harping" about injuries, "old men" on his team, and "rustiness" from a two-week layoff.

In the past week or so, Brown has been complaining about injuries to such key players as halfback Dub Jones and end Mac Speedie. He still insisted today that "frankly we're not counting on them."

As for "old men," the Browns have nine players who have been with the team since it was established in 1946. Brown has been known to defend them, in spite of their age, as better than "a lot of younger men I know."

These "nine old men," as the players describe themselves, are:

Quarterback Otto Graham, fullback Marion Motley, offensive ends Dante Lavelli and Speedie, defensive end George Young, tackle Lou Groza, guards Lin Houston and Bill Willis, and center Frank Gatski.

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 24 (AP)—The academic fathers dealt the Trojans of Southern California a hard blow today when they ruled Jim Psaltis, one of the nation's best defensive halfbacks, ineligible to play against Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Psaltis, whose record of nine pass interceptions, which he returned for 113 yards and two touchdowns, was second best in the nation this year, was declared ineligible because he played two games on the junior varsity team at Santa Rosa, Calif., Junior College in 1949.

Children's Ward Is Plot for Play

Woodstock, Dec. 24—With a cast of 12 pupils of the Woodstock Elementary School, a play titled Christmas Is Believing, written by Mrs. Carl Hubbell and directed by Mrs. William Stifler, was presented at the school auditorium Tuesday morning, for the school children and in the evening for the parents.

Set in the children's ward in a hospital, the play told of the plight of four young patients who wanted desperately to believe in Santa Claus. Their spirits and belief, however, were dampened by the bitter attitude of their ward nurse, Miss Carter, played by Lynne Wright, who wanted no part of Christmas nonsense. Their kindly physician, Dr. Harris, played by Sylvester Pollet, tried to help the children keep their faith in Santa Claus, but Miss Carter was in stern command of the ward.

One of the patients Mary Philips, played by Judy Rapp, took matters into her hands once the lights were out and made her wish on a star for Santa to come. The lovely Star Bright, played by Jean Wilson, heard the wish and relayed it quickly to Santa.

Santa quickly dispatched his three jovial helpers, Winkie (Danny Perlman), Dumpey (Pierre Angiel), and Pokey (Cappy Foster) to the hospital ward to prepare the tree and stockings for Christmas. With the help of the Sandman (Ira Deutsch) both the children and Miss Carter were put to sleep after one patient, Davey, played by Drew Elwyn, who wanted to help his friends, was allowed a quick glimpse of the elves. Meanwhile, little Jonathan Small (Paul Townsend), Mary and Nancy Walker slumbered as the preparations were made.

Convinced by Santa

All was finally quiet when Santa arrived with his bulging bag filled with the gifts the children had wished for most. Miss Carter awoke and after first not believing her eyes, she was finally convinced by Santa that Christmas was really a pretty fine spirit after all. To her he gave the best gift of all, the Christmas spirit and all the joys that go with it.

On the happy Christmas morning at the ward, Dr. Harris turns up in a Santa Claus suit to help with the fun and the play concluded with the children singing Christmas carols, their arms filled with gifts.

Mrs. Stifler achieved a polished production with her young performers who entered with verve and gusto into the spirit of Mrs. Hubbell's play. The show was colorful with the bright costumes created by Mrs. Thomas Dendy and Mrs. John Wolven.

Serving on the backetage crew were Jimmy Sandner, Curry Freer, Allen Van Wagenen, Wayne Underhill and Hannah Barth acted as prompter.

Animal Illustrations Done by Local Artist

Woodstock, Dec. 23—Recently published in time for the Christmas season, Happy Animal Families, a picture book for young people illustrated by Woodstock's noted watercolor artist John Pike, offers a new approach to the juvenile field. Handled with realistic perfection, with more than a touch of whimsey in Pike's illustrations, it contains poems by Ernestine Beyer and was published by Grosset & Dunlap.

To a large extent the pictures are concerned with the animal goings-on in a happy, obviously prosperous barnyard, which contains a beautifully decorated Pennsylvania Dutch red barn. The animals therein all appear to be enormously pleased with themselves and their pleasant lot.

The cocky red rooster preens himself in a sunny doorway while mother hens set contentedly with her brood of 10 chicks. Into the pen of the pig family Pike has cast a beautiful string of pearls while papa pig snoozes, the little piglets evince more interest in the tempting ears of corn.

In another corner of the farm a pair of snowy white ducks are teaching their young to swim while a curious frog looks on, while under a covering log mother fox cautions her three little foxes to "try to be more foxy, dears!'

Under the gentle cover of a starlit night the stately buck protects the doe and her "cunning little deer." The cat family is, of course, cozily enconced behind the kitchen coal stove, mama on a patchwork quilt with the kittens frisking about and papa asleep under the stove. One kitten carries on a timid conversation with a small mouse whose head appears in the baseboard.

Clarence, the "remarkable calf," is listening to a talk on serious things by papa bull while the red-breasted robin, complete with buttons, and the birds and the bees listen in.

The lambs play leap-frog in the pasture and the rabbits line up for a taste of Dad's loot from Farmer Brown's garden, a luscious yellow carrot.

For the dog family, Pike has used his own handsome Irish setter as his model for the mother with her bouncing litter of seven pups. The horses in the pasture race in the wind or quietly graze, and the little colt's "content to rest, close to her who loves him best."

Last but not least, the bear farther out in the woods frolic beside the stream with a turtle family. In Pike's illusrations the animals exhibit delightful personalities, but they are shown in their respective habitats, with the depth of green forests and the spaciousness of open pastures and fields.

Brownies and Scouts Hold Candle Service

Woodstock, Dec. 23—At the close of the regular meeting of the Brownie Troops 27 and 29, with Mrs. Sylva Hutchins as leader, at the Woodstock Elementary School Monday afternoon, the troops joined with the Girl Scout Troops 12 and 74 and were led by Mrs. Theodore Lee in the traditional world-wide candlelighting service. The Brownies had presented previously a tree to the school which they had decorated under the guidance of Mrs. Hutchins and Mrs. Robert Gordon.

Mrs. Lee read the prayer for peace and 72 girls and leaders lighted their candles from her candle which had been lighted by the Ulster County Council. Each girl took her candle home and on Christmas Eve will burn it in a window at which time she will repeat the prayer for peace. According to Mrs. Charles Rapp, leader of Troop 12, every Girl Scout and Girl Guide enacts the same ceremony all over the world on Christmas Eve.

The members of Troop 12 held their Christmas party at the school last Wednesday afternoon. Gifts were exchanged and there were several dramatic presentations followed by refreshments.

Mrs. Lee's Troop 74 gave their party Thursday night at the school with square dancing the feature of the evening. Guests were invited and refreshments served.

These activities will conclude Girl Scouting in the community for the year 1952. Girl Scout and Brownie meetings and activities will resume after the Christmas vacation.

Colorful Decorations Are Noted in Village

Woodstock, Dec. 23—Woodstock decorations for the Christmas season are more colorful this year than in previous years. Individual clubs, churches and business people are joining together with the Woodstock Square Club to make this Christmas a notable one.

The donations from clubs besides the Square Club have reached a total of $100. The latest contributions received are The Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club, $10; WKNY, Kingston, $10; the Overlook Home Bureau, $5; The Woodstock Market Fair $5.

The Square Club committee reports that everything is in readiness for the Christmas Eve program. On Tuesday the judges of decorations will tour the township and make their report. All is now set for the first sound of the trumpets at 4:50 p. m. on Christmas Eve. Everyone is welcome.

Santa Claus will arrive at 5:30 p. m. How? Santa still will not disclose his method of arrival. However, he has sent word that Freilan Van De Bogart will drive him around on Christmas morning to visit the sick children. If you know of a sick child in the township of Woodstock, please call Woodstock 2939.

Children's Ward Is Plot for Play

Woodstock, Dec. 24—With a cast of 12 pupils of the Woodstock Elementary School, a play titled Christmas Is Believing, written by Mrs. Carl Hubbell and directed by Mrs. William Stifler, was presented at the school auditorium Tuesday morning, for the school children and in the evening for the parents.

Set in the children's ward in a hospital, the play told of the plight of four young patients who wanted desperately to believe in Santa Claus. Their spirits and belief, however, were dampened by the bitter attitude of their ward nurse, Miss Carter, played by Lynne Wright, who wanted no part of Christmas nonsense. Their kindly physician, Dr. Harris, played by Sylvester Pollet, tried to help the children keep their faith in Santa Claus, but Miss Carter was in stern command of the ward.

One of the patients Mary Philips, played by Judy Rapp, took matters into her hands once the lights were out and made her wish on a star for Santa to come. The lovely Star Bright, played by Jean Wilson, heard the wish and relayed it quickly to Santa.

Santa quickly dispatched his three jovial helpers, Winkie (Danny Perlman), Dumpey (Pierre Angiel), and Pokey (Cappy Foster) to the hospital ward to prepare the tree and stockings for Christmas. With the help of the Sandman (Ira Deutsch) both the children and Miss Carter were put to sleep after one patient, Davey, played by Drew Elwyn, who wanted to help his friends, was allowed a quick glimpse of the elves. Meanwhile, little Jonathan Small (Paul Townsend), Mary and Nancy Walker slumbered as the preparations were made.

Convinced by Santa

All was finally quiet when Santa arrived with his bulging bag filled with the gifts the children had wished for most. Miss Carter awoke and after first not believing her eyes, she was finally convinced by Santa that Christmas was really a pretty fine spirit after all. To her he gave the best gift of all, the Christmas spirit and all the joys that go with it.

On the happy Christmas morning at the ward, Dr. Harris turns up in a Santa Claus suit to help with the fun and the play concluded with the children singing Christmas carols, their arms filled with gifts.

Mrs. Stifler achieved a polished production with her young performers who entered with verve and gusto into the spirit of Mrs. Hubbell's play. The show was colorful with the bright costumes created by Mrs. Thomas Dendy and Mrs. John Wolven.

Serving on the backetage crew were Jimmy Sandner, Curry Freer, Allen Van Wagenen, Wayne Underhill and Hannah Barth acted as prompter.

Animal Illustrations Done by Local Artist

Woodstock, Dec. 23—Recently published in time for the Christmas season, Happy Animal Families, a picture book for young people illustrated by Woodstock's noted watercolor artist John Pike, offers a new approach to the juvenile field. Handled with realistic perfection, with more than a touch of whimsey in Pike's illustrations, it contains poems by Ernestine Beyer and was published by Grosset & Dunlap.

To a large extent the pictures are concerned with the animal goings-on in a happy, obviously prosperous barnyard, which contains a beautifully decorated Pennsylvania Dutch red barn. The animals therein all appear to be enormously pleased with themselves and their pleasant lot.

The cocky red rooster preens himself in a sunny doorway while mother hens set contentedly with her brood of 10 chicks. Into the pen of the pig family Pike has cast a beautiful string of pearls while papa pig snoozes, the little piglets evince more interest in the tempting ears of corn.

In another corner of the farm a pair of snowy white ducks are teaching their young to swim while a curious frog looks on, while under a covering log mother fox cautions her three little foxes to "try to be more foxy, dears!"

Under the gentle cover of a starlit night the stately buck protects the doe and her "cunning little deer." The cat family is, of course, cozily enconced behind the kitchen coal stove, mama on a patchwork quilt with the kittens frisking about and papa asleep under the stove. One kitten carries on a timid conversation with a small mouse whose head appears in the baseboard.

Clarence, the "remarkable calf," is listening to a talk on serious things by papa bull while the red-breasted robin, complete with buttons, and the birds and the bees listen in.

The lambs play leap-frog in the pasture and the rabbits line up for a taste of Dad's loot from Farmer Brown's garden, a luscious yellow carrot.

For the dog family, Pike has used his own handsome Irish setter as his model for the mother with her bouncing litter of seven pups. The horses in the pasture race in the wind or quietly graze, and the little colt's "content to rest, close to her who loves him best."

Last but not least, the bear farther out in the woods frolic beside the stream with a turtle family. In Pike's illusrations the animals exhibit delightful personalities, but they are shown in their respective habitats, with the depth of green forests and the spaciousness of open pastures and fields.

Brownies and Scouts Hold Candle Service

Woodstock, Dec. 23 — At the close of the regular meeting of the Brownie Troops 27 and 29, with Mrs. Sylva Hutchins as leader, at the Woodstock Elementary School Monday afternoon, the troops joined with the Girl Scout Troops 12 and 74 and were led by Mrs. Theodore Lee in the traditional world-wide candlelighting service. The Brownies had presented previously a tree to the school which they had decorated under the guidance of Mrs. Hutchins and Mrs. Robert Gordon.

Mrs. Lee read the prayer for peace and 72 girls and leaders lighted their candles from her candle which had been lighted by the Ulster County Council. Each girl took her candle home and on Christmas Eve will burn it in a window at which time she will repeat the prayer for peace. According to Mrs. Charles Rapp, leader of Troop 12, every Girl Scout and Girl Guide enacts the same ceremony all over the world on Christmas Eve.

The members of Troop 12 held their Christmas party at the school last Wednesday afternoon. Gifts were exchanged and there were several dramatic presentations followed by refreshments.

Mrs. Lee's Troop 74 gave their party Thursday night at the school with square dancing the feature of the evening. Guests were invited and refreshments served.

These activities will conclude Girl Scouting in the community for the year 1952. Girl Scout and Brownie meetings and activities will resume after the Christmas vacation.

Colorful Decorations Are Noted in Village

Woodstock, Dec. 23—Woodstock decorations for the Christmas season are more colorful this year than in previous years. Individual clubs, churches and business people are joining together with the Woodstock Square Club to make this Christmas a notable one.

The donations from clubs besides the Square Club have reached a total of $100. The latest contributions received are The Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club, $10; WKNY, Kingston, $10; the Overlook Home Bureau, $5; The Woodstock Market Fair $5.

The Square Club committee reports that everything is in readiness for the Christmas Eve program. On Tuesday the judges of decorations will tour the township and make their report. All is now set for the first sound of the trumpets at 4:50 p. m. on Christmas Eve. Everyone is welcome.

Santa Claus will arrive at 5:30 p. m. How? Santa still will not disclose his method of arrival. However, he has sent word that Freilan Van De Bogart will drive him around on Christmas morning to visit the sick children. If you know of a sick child in the township of Woodstock, please call Woodstock 2939.

Pay Roll Levy Proposed, Bill Goes to Committee

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Three Democratic city councilmen yesterday introduced a local law which would levy a pay roll tax of one half of one per cent on employers.

The proposed legislation introduced by Councilmen John J. Merli, Robert Weisberger and Earl Brown, was referred to the committee on state legislation.

Merli, spokesman for the group, said the total pay roll affected this year, exclusive of city employes, is approximately 14 billion dollars.

He estimated that the proposed yield would be about 70 millions annually.

He said this additional revenue would make possible the repeal of the auto use tax, liquor tax and the increased one per cent city sales tax.

The same group of councilmen also introduced two other tax measures calling for the repeal of the liquor tax and the dropping of the three per cent sales tax to two per cent.

Referred to Group

These measures were referred to the finance committee. The tax proposal exempts the first $15,000 of each employer's annual pay roll and calls for the entire assumption and payment of the tax by the employers.

City, state and federal agencies would be exempt.

Merli said he would press also for additional state aid. He added that the amount of money to be obtained from real estate taxes has reached the saturation point.

Council President Rudolph Halley introduced a resolution calling for the licensing of stevedores, the abolishment of public loaders, a study to find a substitute for the shapeup system of hiring stevedores and an authority to take over the waterfront to properly police as well as to rehabilitate it.

Halley's resolution was referred to the committee on rules.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE'S CHRISTMAS THE BEST EVER: By WALT SCOTT

Prompt Reply Is Asked for Money From Yule Seals

Because some Christmas Seals letters may have been overlooked among other Christmas mail, reminder cards have gone out to residents who have yet to acknowledge the letters, James L. Rowe, county Christmas Seals Sale chairman said today. This year's Christmas Seal Sale conducted by the Ulster County TB and Health Asssociation opened Nov. 17 and will continue until Jan. 1. Funds from the 1952 campaign will be used for the association's 1953 tuberculosis control program including promotion of chest X-ray surveys, patients service committee work, mental health work, and other community and school health projects.

"We are certain that most of those who have delayed answering their Christmas Seals letter merely have let it slip their minds," Rowe said. He urged that Christmas Seals be placed high on the list of all shoppers, because Christmas Seals represent a Christmas package which lasts the whole year through. Christmas Seals are an investment in a healthier and happier 1953 for your community, because Christmas Seals funds will support the tuberculosis controls program of the Ulster County TB and Health Association. "When you buy Christmas Seals you are helping to pay for the health of yourself, your family, and your community," Rowe pointed out.

into a habit of snooping around committees or telephoning members and members of the staffs after hours. For the press to rebuke these fellows now, whether for getting information but not for leaking it, is to ridicule itself.

Unquestionably, the congressional inquisition has been abused for base reasons. The Buchanan Committee on "Lobbying" was a scheme hatched by agents of the non-sectarian anti-Nazi League of New York and other private organizations intent on persecuting American citizens for exalting the constitution above the United Nations. This league and a few other well-known terroristic societies actually instigated, initiated and "ran" this congressional committee. Its investigation was an actual witch-hunt far more cruel and realistic than the legitimate exposures of Communists in our State Department which Stokes his cult have deplored so mournfully.

Joe Kamp and Edward Rumely were sentenced to jail and Kamp actually served his time, not for any crime but for standing up against a congressional committee which was consciously doing the dirty work of bands of private conspirators. Rumely's sentence later was vacated on constitutional grounds which should have been plain to the committee itself.

Now there will be an investigation of the Buchanan committee's investigation. Buchanan was a petty crook with a police record. His servile conduct was so flagrant that Stokes and all the others who wept from their very pores over the cruel injustice to Alger Hiss, Lattimore and their like, should have raised hell, but held their peace for reasons which I would read with interest if they should ever deign to tell.

Pay Roll Levy Proposed, Bill Goes to Committee

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Three Democratic city councilmen yesterday introduced a local law which would levy a pay roll tax of one half of one per cent on employers.

The proposed legislation introduced by Councilmen John J. Merli, Robert Weisberger and Earl Brown, was referred to the committee on state legislation.

Merli, spokesman for the group, said the total pay roll affected this year, exclusive of city employes, is approximately 14 billion dollars.

He estimated that the proposed yield would be about 70 millions annually.

He said this additional revenue would make possible the repeal of the auto use tax, liquor tax and the increased one per cent city sales tax.

The same group of councilmen also introduced two other tax measures calling for the repeal of the liquor tax and the dropping of the three per cent sales tax to two per cent.

Referred to Group

These measures were referred to the finance committee. The tax proposal exempts the first $15,000 of each employer's annual pay roll and calls for the entire assumption and payment of the tax by the employers.

City, state and federal agencies would be exempt.

Merli said he would press also for additional state aid. He added that the amount of money to be obtained from real estate taxes has reached the saturation point.

Council President Rudolph Halley introduced a resolution calling for the licensing of stevedores, the abolishment of public loaders, a study to find a substitute for the shapeup system of hiring stevedores and an authority to take over the waterfront to properly police as well as to rehabilitate it.

Halley's resolution was referred to the committee on rules.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE'S CHRISTMAS — THE BEST EVER! — By WALT SCOTT

Prompt Reply Is Asked for Money From Yule Seals

Because some Christmas Seals letters may have been overlooked among other Christmas mail, reminder cards have gone out to residents who have yet to acknowledge the letters, James L. Rowe, county Christmas Seals Sale chairman said today. This year's Christmas Seal Sale conducted by the Ulster County TB and Health Asssociation opened Nov. 17 and will continue until Jan. 1. Funds from the 1952 campaign will be used for the association's 1953 tuberculosis control program including promotion of chest X-ray surveys, patients service committee work, mental health work, and other community and school health projects.

"We are certain that most of those who have delayed answering their Christmas Seals letter merely have let it slip their minds," Rowe said. He urged that Christmas Seals be placed high on the list of all shoppers, because Christmas Seals represent a Christmas package which lasts the whole year through. Christmas Seals are an investment in a healthier and happier 1953 for your community, because Christmas Seals funds will support the tuberculosis controls program of the Ulster County TB and Health Association. "When you buy Christmas Seals you are helping to pay for the health of yourself, your family, and your community," Rowe pointed out.

As Pegler Sees It

into a habit of snooping around committees or telephoning members and members of the staffs after hours. For the press to rebuke these fellows now, whether for getting information but not for leaking it, is to ridicule itself.

Unquestionably, the congressional inquisition has been abused for base reasons. The Buchanan Committee on "Lobbying" was a scheme hatched by agents of the non-sectarian anti-Nazi League of New York and other private organizations intent on persecuting American citizens for exalting the constitution above the United Nations. This league and a few other well-known terroristic societies actually instigated, initiated and "ran" this congressional committee. Its investigation was an actual witch-hunt far more cruel and realistic than the legitimate exposures of Communists in our State Department which Stokes his cult have deplored so mournfully.

Joe Kamp and Edward Rumely were sentenced to jail and Kamp actually served his time, not for any crime but for standing up against a congressional committee which was consciously doing the dirty work of bands of private conspirators. Rumely's sentence later was vacated on constitutional grounds which should have been plain to the committee itself.

Now there will be an investigation of the Buchanan committee's investigation. Buchanan was a petty crook with a police record. His servile conduct was so flagrant that Stokes and all the others who wept from their very pores over the cruel injustice to Alger Hiss, Lattimore and their like, should have raised hell, but held their peace for reasons which I would read with interest if they should ever deign to tell.

Weather, partly cloudy.

The Temperature

The lowest temperature recorded on The Freeman thermometer during the night was 34 degrees. The highest figure recorded up to noon today was 38 degrees.

Weather Forecast

New York city and vicinity—Cloudy this morning, becoming partly cloudy this afternoon, milder than yesterday; high well up in the 40's. Some cloudiness and slightly cooler tonight; low 30 to 35. Some cloudiness Thursday; high in the low or mid-40's.

Eastern New York — Cloudy, some sleet or freezing rain likely in the north portion this morning; high today 35 to 40. Cloudy tonight; low 26 to 32. Thursday mostly cloudy and colder, snow flurries likely in the west or north portions.

The city engineer's weather records today showed a temperature of 44 degrees at 10 a. m., a barometric pressure of 29.41 inches, a humidity of 89 per cent, and a southwest wind with a velocity of 10 miles an hour. The high temperature yesterday was 37 at 2 p. m., and the low was 31 at 3 a. m. The mean temperature was 34 and the normal is 36. The humidity was 98 at 7 a. m., and 94 at 11 p. m. The barometric pressure was 29.63 at 1 a. m., and 29.46 at 11 p. m. The top velocity of a northeast wind was 12 miles an hour.

Sims Is Transferred

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Clarence Sims, 37, Cleveland Negro gunman wounded here Dec. 11 in a wild gun battle in which three policemen and three pedestrians also were wounded, was transferred today from a hospital to a police station. Sims, wearing the same bloodied suit he wore when captured, was taken from the Bellevue Hospital prison ward to the 47th street station for fingerprinting, photographing and questioning. Persons involved in a Harrison payroll robbery were expected to confront Sims later today to determine whether he was the man who robbed them. Police said Sims already has admitted a fatal shooting in Harlem on Nov. 1.

Business Survey

Washington, Dec. 24 (AP)—The U. S. has about four million business firms, the Commerce Department reported yesterday, most of them "very small" and half of them only about four years old. The department made a survey, based on the business population at the end of 1951. It found there were 4,014,000 business firms, not counting farm ownership.

Four Plead Innocent In Cuban Revolt Plot

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Dec. 24 (AP)—Four men allegedly involved in plans for a "Christmas revolt" against the Cuban government have pleaded innocent to charges they violated the state weapons law and stored inflammables without a permit.

The four entered their pleas yesterday before Acting Judge Francis Auleta.

A secret arsenal of grenades, bullets, shells and napalm was found last week in a boarded up filling station here. Police on Monday seized a cabin cruiser at Rye, N. Y., which they said was being converted possibly to smuggle arms to Cuba.

The four were Alfred Mannheim, 29, a New York munitions dealer; Frank Connell, 49, of Brooklyn; Jose Duarte, 35, of Yonkers, N. Y.; and William J. Wood, 45, of Staten Island, New York city.

Ball in 2 Sections

Washington, Dec. 24 (AP) — So many persons have asked about tickets to the Inaugural Ball—more than 50,000 of them so far, officials say—that the traditional climax to the presidential inauguration on Jan. 20 will be in two sections. President-elect and Mrs. Eisenhower suggested the plan. The ball was announced originally as an invitation-only affair at the local armory. Now a second section is being arranged for Uline Arena. The Eisenhowers, and the entertainers, will shuttle back and forth between the two.

Supplies Textile Machinery

Manila (AP) — Japan has dislodged the United States as the leading supplier of textile machinery and spare parts to the Philippines. Bureau of trade statistics also showed that during the first half of 1952 Japan ran a close second to the United States as buyer of Philippine mahogany, sugar, scrap metals, sea shells and hemp.

Dicken's Scrooge thought he couldn't afford to be merry or to make others merry. But when his meanness was buried, he finally said, "I will honor Christmas in my heart and try to keep it all the year."

We hope a million Scrooges will see their Marley's ghost this Christmas, and that the "Ebenezer Scrooge" tombstone will mark the spirit of "Peace on earth, good will toward men."
